

Lt. Col. Paul Rittelmann

D. A. feels new plan to aid fight

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County District Attorney Phillip H. Williams Friday said he was pleased to hear that plans are underway to put narcotic investigations in the hands of Pennsylvania State Police.

"I think the plan has merit and many advantages for law enforcement officers working with narcotics. One of the advantages is that there will be greater manpower," Williams said.

"In this area there is one narcotic agent from the Department of Health to cover eight counties and one of the eight is Monroe County.

"When the entire operation is transferred to police there will be available a narcotics man to call on every state policeman in the state if it is necessary.

"From another point of view, I feel that there will be more arrests and more convictions and the end result will be that we will eliminate, almost anyhow, the use of narcotics in the state.

"From a local point, it will be easier for the district attorney to contact the men working with narcotics. The office of the district attorney is located in Stroudsburg and so are the state police. This closeness is to the office's advantage in keeping contact with men working on cases.

"I also believe it is wise, and very fortunate, to have a man such as Lt. Col. Paul Rittelmann to head this new unit. His years of experience as a policeman will no doubt be of great help in the operation and administration of this new unit," Williams concluded.

Former PP&L official killed

SOUTH WHITEHALL, Pa. (AP) — A 68-year-old former Power & Light Co. was shot to death here Friday and his former wife was arrested by State Police on a general charge of murder.

The dead man, Leon Phillips, of Hazleton, was slain in the office of a real estate agent in this Allentown suburb.

His former wife, Helen Phillips, 66, was taken into custody after the slaying and was being held without bail after a preliminary hearing.

Victim of times

Saturday Evening Post nearing end

NEW YORK (AP) — The Saturday Evening Post, which has focused on the simple delights of American life since James Monroe was president, will expire Feb. 8, victim of changing times.

It lost about $5 million in 1968 and faced a deficit of another $3 million this year, Martin S. Ackerman, president said.

Ackerman said that after refinancing The Saturday Evening Post Co. with $15 million in new capital, he had assured stockholders and directors that regardless of his personal feelings, The Post would be shut down if it could not return a profit.

"Our editors have been producing for the last year or more one of the finest magazines in America but apparently it was not wanted enough to attract advertising dollars. We just could not sell enough advertising and cut expenses fast enough," he said.

Apparently there is just not the need for our product in today's scheme of living."

Curtis will continue to publish Holiday, Status and Jack and Jill magazines, he said.

The Post, which made Norman Rockwell and Tug Boat Annie household names had been plagued with financial troubles. It was a major factor in Curtis' estimated $62 million loss between 1961 and mid-1968.

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer proclaimed all-out war against the drug traffic Thursday and commissioned a new enforcement director to carry out the mission.

It was the preliminary step, announced at a news office, to implement plans outlined by Shafer in his State of the Commonwealth message to the legislature earlier this week to transfer narcotics enforcement from the Health Department to the State Police.

To head the 20-man enforcement unit now functioning in the Health Department, Shafer called back from State Police retirement Lt. Col. Paul A. Rittelmann and made him deputy secretary of health.

Rittelmann, who retired on his 55th birthday last fall after a 30-year career in the police department, will be attached to the Health Department only until the narcotics agency is transferred to the State Police.

The transfer, Shafer said, would be made as soon as possible, but he declined to speculate on what other changes would be recommended pending a study by Rittelmann.

Rittelmann's appointment to the $21,672 post was made effective immediately.

Calling attention to Rittelmann's long and distinguished service," Shafer said he has "the utmost confidence in Col. Rittelmann."

He emphasized that the agency needed new leadership, and conceded it was hamstrung by present rules and regulations. Among these: the requirement that agents must give 72-hour notice of a raid; they are not permitted to carry weapons, and their automobiles are not equipped with radios.

Rittelmann, who formerly headed the State Police Academy at Hershey and served a period as acting commissioner of State Police, was present for the news conference. In response to a question, Rittelmann said that much of the crime in the street, both in Pennsylvania and the nation, is traceable to the narcotics traffic.

Shafer expressed the view that a law enforcement function could best be performed by a law enforcement agency. He recalled that a similar step was taken by the federal government last year.

Shafer said legislation to transfer the narcotics bureau from Health to the State Police would be ready for presentation to the General Assembly when it returns Jan. 27.

191,307 enemy die in battle

SAIGON (AP) — A government report claimed Friday that 191,307 enemy troops were killed in the savage fighting of 1968. Another 21,050 were captured and 17,597 defected, the South Vietnamese said.

This period covers the big Tet offensive in February that spread desolation across South Vietnam and includes lesser enemy drives in May and in August-September.

In the past year the government reported its own losses were 17,466 killed. The U.S. Command, yet to publish final figures, placed American battle deaths at 14,521 through Dec. 28.

Despite the staggering total of nearly 230,000 killed, captured or defected, over-all enemy troop strength fell only 20,000 in the past year, the report said.

The difference largely was made up by increased North Vietnamese infiltrators, about 151,000 troops moved into the war zones, the annual report said. The inference was that Viet Cong recruiting made up other replacements.

In general the report gave a picture of expanding and increasingly successful activity by the much-criticized South Vietnamese and other government forces.

It cited such things as a casualty ratio of 5.9 enemy soldiers to every allied soldier in 1968, sharply up from the 4.1 to 1 figure of 1967 and more than double the 2.9 to 1 ratio of 1965.

It also said there was a 10.3 to 1 ratio of weapons lost by the enemy compared to those lost by South Vietnamese soldiers. Loss of weapons has been a critical weakness in the army's performance.

As is often the case in war statistics, there are sharp disparities between figures.

welcoming ceremony on steps of City Hall here Friday. Later, the trio of spacemen was accorded one of the city's famous ticker-tape parades through New York's "canyons of steel."

New York lifts astronauts into orbit of special honors

NEW YORK (AP) — New York swept the crew of Apollo 8 into a wide-ranging orbit of honors Friday, accorded by roaring thousands in the streets and by dignitaries in a round of glittering receptions that lasted from morning to midnight.

Raising a glass of champagne in a toast to the city, Air Force Col. Frank Borman, commander of the moon-circling flight said:

"I only wish each of you could have been with us today. I wish you could have seen the faces the young and the old, the black and the white.

They all had one thing in common: They were all grateful that this country could achieve the accomplishment of Apollo 8. "We were only the instruments."

His voice was vibrant with emotion. Borman spoke at a luncheon in which the city honored him and his companions in space, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell, Jr., and Air Force Lieut. Col. William Anders.

More than 600 guests attended. In the group were former United Nations Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, Floyd McKissick and the Rev. Milton Galamison, civil rights leaders; former tennis champion Billy Talbot, singer Pearl Bailey and other notables.

Borman, Lovell and Anders sat at a table presided over by Mrs. John V. Lindsay, wife of the mayor. The centerpiece was a miniature space capsule orbiting around a miniature moon.

Archbishop Terence Cooke delivered the benediction. He spoke of the astronauts' "courage and unselfishness, their 'strong faith in You.'"

The three spacemen wore the medals, presented earlier by Lindsay, on ribbons of blue and gold around their necks.

Lindsay spoke of the "multitudes that lined all of the streets of New York from the Battery to Lincoln Center . . . a glorious sight to see."

The mayor said he had heard someone shout to the spacemen, "Fellas, the next time you go, take Lindsay with you."

When Borman rose to speak he said, "I was informed in Houston that there was an application from a Lindsay, J.V., New York City. That's the reason I came here — to check him out."

Russians in probe of Venus

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched Friday its second unmanned Venus probe in five days. Both space ships were reported heading for a mid-way rendezvous with the earth's cloud-wrapped sister planet.

The news agency Tass said the new probe, Venus 6, would attempt a slow descent through the atmosphere and a soft landing on a part of the planet's surface not illuminated by the sun. Venus 5 launched Sunday, will attempt such a landing on a different part of its surface.

Information radioed back to earth from both probes will be compared to provide "a still greater amount of scientific information" about Venus' hot atmosphere, cloud cover and surface crust, Tass said.

A Western diplomat specializing in science said the two space ships apparently would try to maintain radio contact longer than Venus 4 did in October 1967.

Venus 4 was the only space ship to make a slow descent through Venus' atmosphere, but its radio apparently went dead before it reached the surface.

Soviet announcements at the time said Venus 4 made a soft landing, but Western scientists said the lack of continued radio signals suggested that it either crashed or melted in the heat.

Venus 4 reported the atmosphere as being up to 536 degrees and made up almost entirely of carbon dioxide.

Neutrality role ends in secrecy

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Neutral Sweden, haven for American defectors from the Vietnam war, became Friday the first Western country to extend diplomatic recognition to North Vietnam.

The Swedish government, after two weeks of secret discussions, invited Hanoi to establish diplomatic relations. It said it was "in line with the development of contacts between the two countries."

In Washington, a U. S. State Department spokesman said "while the Swedish government's decision is of course its own to make, the U. S. government does not believe this decision will help the cause of peace in Southeast Asia."

Sweden's action comes at a time "when the Hanoi regime still continues its efforts to overthrow with armed force the elected constitutional government of South Vietnam," said press officer Robert J. McCloskey.

The communique from the Foreign Office coincided with the return to Stockholm of U. S. Ambassador William Heath.

"I have just been told of this development," Heath said at the airport. "I am hardly prepared to comment at this time. You all know the U.S. objective is peace in Vietnam."

Sweden for the last three years has maintained unofficial relations with Hanoi and it allowed the National Liberation Front to open an information office here. There was speculation in newspapers that the next Swedish move would be recognition of the NLF.

Sweden's relations with South Vietnam lapsed two years ago when the new Swedish ambassador to Bangkok was not, like his predecessor, accredited to Saigon.

Sit-in leader meets faculty

SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — Clinton Elheridge, a leader of the black sit-in at Swarthmore College, left the occupied administration building Friday to meet with college officials faculty and a group of students.

A spokesman for the administration said no disciplinary action yet is planned against the handful of Afro-American Student Society members who seized the facility Thursday.

Pilot dies as traffic plane falls

NEW YORK (AP) — A radio station helicopter crashed into a three-story apartment building in Queens Friday afternoon killing the pilot and setting two buildings on fire. The crash occurred during a live traffic broadcast.

Eyewitnesses said the pilot, Frank McDermott, 36, jumped from the craft and fell into a courtyard as it started to crash.

McDermott was alone, flying "Helicopter 710," a two-seat craft owned and operated by the WOR radio station.

The radio station said McDermott, a relief pilot, had transmitted about 15 seconds of a one-minute traffic information broadcast when he signed off abruptly, telling newsmen John Scott in the studio, "Take it back, John."

In a broadcast about half an hour after the crash, WOR said McDermott had been complaining of high winds while he was on the air.

McDermott, a former Air Force pilot who also worked for a construction company, was substituting for Fred Feldman, known on the air as "Fearless Freddie."

WOR said it had received several reports from listeners who said they saw the helicopter crash. One man said he saw several sparks just before the accident. Another said the helicopter appeared to be heading toward Consolidated Edison Co. gas tanks just before it crashed.

Occupants of the two burning buildings and surrounding houses were evacuated.

Bliss to stay

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon asked Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss Friday to remain at the GOP helm, and Bliss said he will stay to begin a drive for enhanced congressional strength in the 1970 election.

Farewell ceremonies to be held for pastor

MOUNT POCONO — Following a farewell dinner and ecumenical sendoff Sunday, Rev. Wesley K. Meixell and his family will prepare to leave Mount Pocono United Methodist Church for the parsonage at Upland, where he lived for a time as a boy when his father served his ministry there.

The dinner will begin at 5 p.m. at the church's Fellowship Hall for members of the congregation only. An Ecumenical Spiritual Farewell is scheduled at 7 p.m. to which the community is invited. A coffee and cake reception for Rev. Meixell and his family will follow for all present.

Four choirs will sing during the spiritual farewell at which the head layman, Mason Linn, will be moderator. The farewell address will be delivered by Rev. Melvin Pingel, pastor of Lutheran Church of Our Savior, Mount Pocono.

Additional speakers
Other speakers include Rev. Ralph Roth, Trinity Episcopal Church, Mount Pocono, and Father Henry Zapotocki, pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church, Tannersville. Other clergymen representative of the region will be present.

Rev. Meixell's appointment, which is effective Wednesday, was announced by Bishop J. Gordon Howard of Philadelphia at the conclusion of the annual conference of the United Methodist Church in Philadelphia.

When pressed for his most favorable accomplishment during his seven and one-half years at Mount Pocono, Rev. Meixell mentioned construction of the Educational Building which was completed three years ago.

It is used for Sunday School and during the week is available to Youth Fellowship, Girl Scouts, Rotary and other groups.

New memberships
Rev. Meixell also noted that the church has received 160 new members during his tenure — although the net gain amounts to about 50.

Rev. Meixell's father served the five churches of the Tannersville circuit from 1921 to 1925. He served at Upland, southwest of Philadelphia, from 1936 to 1940.

Rev. Meixell, 41, is from Philadelphia as is his wife, Lorna. They have three children: Ruth, 12, Wesley, 10 and Rudy, three.

Mrs. Meixell is an advertising design artist and is well-known in the area for her work. Many brochures of local resorts display her work. She has also done designing for church groups.

The Meixells agree that Mount Pocono is "a wonderful place to live" and have announced their intention to find a summer place here in the near future.

Feb. 1 dance to benefit Dimes cause

CANADENSIS — George Curnoles, commander of the Evans-Blitz American Legion Post 922, announced that due to the success of the annual Christmas Dance, a benefit dance will be held Feb. 1 at the Legion Home, Spruce Cabin Road, for the March of Dimes.

In announcing the Feb. 1 dance, Curnoles noted that the Pocono Promenaders would provide music for round and square dancing between 9 p.m. and midnight. Jules Muraro is chairman for the dance. Tickets are available on a basis of donation of one dollar, from legion members.

Curnoles reported that more than 100 adults gathered for the dance and buffet in December. Music was provided by the Musical Knights. Joseph Falcone, a member of the musical group through the courtesy of the Bangor Musicians' Union, appeared the following afternoon to entertain at the Legion Children's Christmas party which was chaired by Pete Quinn and Roger Lindley.

At the children's party, gifts were presented by Santa Claus, whose appearance was arranged by William Wagner. Remaining gifts were given to the Barrett Welfare Council for distribution to needy families. Curnoles reported that despite blowing snow and low temperatures, more than 100 children gathered for the games and refreshments.

Rev. Wesley K. Meixell looks for right word in his study to express thanks to congregation and friends at his farewell dinner Sunday.

Watchnight service held New Year's

GREENTOWN — Members of the Greentown Bible Fellowship Church joined together in a watchnight service on New Year's Eve at the home of William Farnelli, LaAnna, with 23 present for the gathering.

The service featured a message by Richard Ernst, a student from Baptist Bible Seminary, Clarks Summit. As the New Year came in, the group joined in prayer.

The Fellowship Church has prayer meetings on Wednesday nights; Sunday School at 10:30 Sunday morning; and a church service at 11:30 a.m. and another at 8 p.m., each Sunday in the old post office building in Greentown. George Chapin serves the group as pastor.

Scout troop fills church at LaAnna

LA ANNA — The LaAnna United Methodist Church was filled on Sunday when a New Brunswick, N.J., troop of boy scouts, holding an "Order of the Arrow" outing at the American Youth Hostel in LaAnna, attended the service in a body.

Bringing with them a strong fragrance of wood smoke from their campfires, the scouts had spent the weekend enjoying skiing near the hostel and hiking in the woodlands around LaAnna.

Compare violent acts in Mideast

Theologians weigh morality

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Assessing the moral issues involved in the airport onslaughts of Arabs and Israelis, several theologians this week pointed out that religious standards always put more value on life than property.

By that criteria alone, they said, the Arab shooting on a loaded plane in Athens that killed one person and wounded another was greater wrong than the Israeli wrecking of 13 planes in Beirut.

But they emphasized that questions of responsibility and of possible chain-reaction violence that could imperil the world clouded any full evaluation of the ethical implications. They also deplored both actions.

In Judeo-Christian ethics, however, they said that reprisals undertaken for self-defense and not for mere revenge have generally been considered a legitimate recourse of nations, so long as the reprisal did not exceed the scope of the offense precipitating it.

"The property damage was much greater" in Israel's retaliatory strike in Beirut, said Catholic Msgr. John M. Oestericher, head of the Institute for Judeo-Christian Studies, of South Orange, N.J. "But the earlier Athens violence cost human life."

"And life has greater value than an airplane or any number of airplanes," he added. "It seems to me the Israelis should be credited for the precision and care with which they carried out their operation so no one got hurt."

The Rev. Dr. Robert L. Shinn, a Protestant professor of Christian ethics at Union Theological Seminary, also cited that point, adding that the Athens episode was an "act of terrorism" indiscriminating in victims, while the Israeli raid seemed aimed at a country's "economic assets" as an object lesson. "To the extent that this action was directed against property rather than life, it was not as evil as the sheer terrorism," he said. However, like the others, he shunned passing judgment on the over-all ramifications.

"If every reprisal and counter reprisal is to mark further escalation, the whole thing could get out of hand and endanger everyone," he said. "The normal rules of human behavior have broken down in the situation, and it's tough to evaluate ethically."

Noting Lebanese declaimers of responsibility for the action of the two Arab raiders in Athens, Dr. Shinn said "a government can't be held responsible for everything some individual commandos do without authorization."

On the other hand, he said "the point at which a government becomes involved is when people act under its goading. This is not the same as an official act, but people in government bear a responsibility for it."

Prayer for Christian Unity set Jan. 19-26

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg area churches will sponsor a Week of Prayer for Christian Unity from Jan. 19 to 26. All services of unity begin at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Curiosity's Problem

Mr. Curiosity is wondering what that little thing is moving around in the grass. He would like to play with—or eat it, yet he wonders if he dares. On another occasion when he attempted eating something that looked the same as this, it stung him on the nose and when he attempted to play with it he was bitten on the paw. This is about as far as Mr. Curiosity's interest carries him—something to eat or something with which to play.

His man-master is a more complex being, equipped with a brain and a spirit so his curiosity can serve as a stimulus to enable him to think of things more important than just something to eat, something to wear and play—having a good time. If he is one who seriously uses these faculties he begins to wonder what life is all about and what he should do about it. This is where the Church can be a great aid. It will help him develop and plan a program for both his spiritual as well as his materialistic life. Attendance at church will serve him as a place of learning, a refuge and a place for restoring mind, body and spirit.

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

Thomas Duchnik Jr. of Olyphant, a leukemia victim, serenades Armed Forces Queen Mary Suda of Kingston during visit to Tobyhanna Army Depot this week. Both are signing up donors for depot's blood drive, Jan. 14 and 15.

Blood drive Jan. 14, 15

Youth strums up support

TOBYHANNA — Six-year-old Thomas Duchnik Jr. came to Tobyhanna Army Depot this week to say thanks to the "nice blood donors."

A leukemia victim, Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duchnik Sr. of Olyphant. His dad is employed as an aircraft attendant at the installation.

In recent months, young Thomas has needed several direct transfusions, which were supplied by depot personnel.

Wearing a Beatle-type wig and dark glasses, and strumming a toy guitar he received for Christmas, Thomas toured the various shops and offices. Accompanying him on his rounds was the post's Armed Forces Queen, Miss Mary Suda of Kingston, who distributed donor pledge cards for the depot's blood drive, Jan.

14 and 15.

Miss Suda, a pretty brunette, said later, "Tommy was the big attraction, he's so cute."

Thomas will be back at the depot Monday to take a tourmobile ride through the activities he didn't cover this week.

"He's looking forward to it," reported his dad, who in addition to recruiting donors, plans to give a pint himself.

Area Rep. heads new House unit

HARRISBURG — Rep. Russell Kowalyszyn, Northampton, has been named chairman of the subcommittee on Banking and Savings and Loan in the House of Representatives for the 1969-70 session of General Assembly.

Kowalyszyn was named to the newly-created committee post by the newly elected Speaker of the House, Rep. Herbert Fineman of Philadelphia.

In a move to modernize the House, Fineman reduced the number of standing committees from 33 to 21 and, in an effort to focus legislative attention on major specialized areas, established subcommittees as branches of eight of the standing committees. The subcommittee on Banking and Savings and Loan is a division of the standing committee on Business and Commerce.

"Kowalyszyn's exceptional legal background and experience well qualify him for this position," Fineman said. "We all know that he will do an effective job."

Kowalyszyn will also serve as a member of the standing committees on Appropriations and on Agriculture and Dairy Industries.

HONESDALE — A reorganization plan to form three separate school districts and abolish Wayne County's 22 individual boards and districts was unanimously approved by the Department of Public Instruction (DPI).

Wayne County Superintendent of Schools John Sutton received confirmation of the action Friday afternoon. The DPI took the unanimous action Thursday night.

The approval of the Wayne County School Board's proposal means that one new centralized district will be formed and individual school boards will be abolished.

District plan

The three district plan approved by DPI is:

District One — The Honesdale

Union School District will combine with five independent northern districts.

District Two — The current Wallenpaupack Area Joint School District. Individual boards now within the district will be abolished.

District Three — The Western Wayne Joint School District plus the independent Salem Township District. Individual boards will also be abolished.

Sutton said the new districts will be reorganized by July 1 if the DPI decision is not contested in the Court of Common Pleas.

Three opposed

Three school districts opposed the County School Board's reorganization plan during a DPI hearing last month. These districts are Buckingham, Scott and Salem Townships.

Sutton was unable to determine Friday whether any of these three districts will contest the DPI approval.

If the decision is not contested, Sutton said he will have to call separate conventions from each of the districts on or before February 15.

At the conventions, Sutton explained, directors will appoint a nine member interim operating committee. The committee will have to choose a name for the new district, appoint a chief school administrator, prepare a budget and set the tax rate. This has to be accomplished by July 1.

In July, Sutton explained, the interim committee will become the official school board for the new district. During the period of reorganization, the current school boards will continue with their normal operation.

Jennings reelected

PEN ARGYL—Earl Jennings was reelected chairman of the Washington Township Supervisors during a reorganization meeting this week.

Walter Savitz was elected vice chairman; Paul Wagner, secretary-treasurer; Savits, roadmaster; William Agnew, solicitor and Richard Rutt, sanitary officer.

Depot's cost $50 million; economy mission aid urged

TOBYHANNA — It costs $50 million a year to operate Tobyhanna Army Depot, Commanding Officer Col. Paul R. Poulin told military and civilian personnel Thursday.

In three separate mass rallies, he urged all-out support for the depot's new Mission Economy-Quality program, which combines several earlier efforts to reduce expenditures and improve output at the huge installation.

"This is a New Year," Colonel Poulin began, "a year in which our nation will be involved in everything from saving the whooping crane to landing a man on the moon, to preventing pollution to ending the war in Vietnam."

Vast expenditures
This will call for a vast expenditure of funds, he pointed out, with a probable deemphasis on military spending when hostilities end in Vietnam.

"The Army depots that show the greatest cost effectiveness will receive the available projects," he said.

"Tobyhanna Army Depot," he continued, "is the newest of the large Army depots in the United States and has the finest work-force."

I do not say that without being sure of my facts."

He explained that before taking command of the depot last April, he had an assignment which took him to numerous U.S. defense installations.

"We can feel secure here no matter what the future brings, if we continue to do the best job possible."

Taxpayer economy

He gave two additional reasons for supporting the Mission Economy-Quality program. "One is that we're all taxpayers and citizens interested in getting the most for our tax dollar," he said, "and the other is there are monetary awards and recognition for all who submit worthwhile ideas."

Colonel Poulin presented special Army Materiel Command plaques to Miss Pauline Sargent, Pardecville, and Louis Sylvester, Moosic, who turned in the largest money-saving suggestions during fiscal year 1968. The pair were previously honored at a national cost reduction awards ceremony at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

Kalin condition still poor after falling from roof

MILFORD—A serviceman for the Smith Plumbing and Heating Co. of Port Jervis, N.Y., remained in poor condition Friday in St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis, from injuries suffered when he fell off the roof of the General Telephone Co. in Milford.

The man, Orville Kalin, suffered a broken wrist, pelvis bone and internal injuries.

Kalin and another worker were repairing the roof top furnace about 6 p.m. Wednesday when Kalin apparently leaned back too far and toppled off the roof.

The Milford Fire Department ambulance was summoned.

Up Milford Way

Doggone days

By NORMAN B. LEHDE

MILFORD — Are winters as tough as they were in what folks like to call the "good old days?"

Let us consider the weather we have been having since the first of the year. While not extreme, it has been a pretty cool season. Snow, ice and temperatures that were hardly ever above freezing.

Let us look at this weather as one would have had to look at it in the "good old days" in the country. It appears beautiful on a Carrier and lives print but think for a moment of: no central heating; no indoor plumbing; water from the outside pump; no transportation on a cold night or freezing morning when one can also turn on extra heat with a flick of the finger.

It could be that the winters were neither longer nor colder then; they just seemed that way! No wonder the first sign of a lengthening day, a few extra minutes of sunshine, was looked upon with such great pleasure. No wonder the almanac was thumbed so profusely for sign of weather breaks ahead. No wonder the seed catalogue, always a mid-winter arrival, was explored so gleefully as the harbinger of another springtime.

THE FUNERAL of former State Trooper John Frank was well attended last Saturday afternoon. The crowd embraced both young and old. This was fitting and natural, since the work of Mr. Frank, who was Probation Officer in the county at the time of his death, touched people of many ages.

During the recent holiday season, the several new homes in the Overbrook Section, across the stream from Sawkill Avenue near the Knob, added much colored lighting to the hillside picture.

Members of the Milford Women's Bowling League are preparing their entries in the 26th Annual Championship Tournament of the Middletown Women's Bowling Association. The tournament will be bowled on the weekends of Feb. 22-23, March 1-2 and March 8-9, at the Port Jervis Lanes, which are the "home alleys" for the local bowlers.

The Delaware Valley Pool League is attracting a good deal of attention. We understand that there is quite a following of fans in attendance when the matches are played at the eight establishments represented in the league.

SOMETHING new has been added at Bucci's Restaurant on Route 209. Sing-a-longs will be held each Friday and Saturday evening. Host Donati Bucci is one of the favorite singers in the Lyric Arts Opera Company.

Speaking of the Lyric Arts Company, they were scheduled, to present a concert at the International Center of New York City last evening.

It appears that the question of assessment policy in Pike County can only be settled by court.

IT IS ABOUT time for the ladies of the Milford Garden Club to get together and assemble their scrap-book material for the first year of the current Community Improvement contest.

The contest is sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce and eight supporting organization and in the past, the local club has placed on the winner's list in 10 consecutive contests and won a grand total of $6,950.00, which, under the rules of the contest, was used for civic improvement in the borough.

'Patriotic car' carried mail through West End

KRESGEVILLE — Senior citizens of the West End may still recall the use of an automobile known as the "Patriotic Car" during World War I.

The car, actually known as the Stanley Steamer, was given the other name by a Mr. Bond who carried the mail between Lehigh and Stroudsburg during that era.

Bond used two of the "steamers". Some residents recall him filling the car's boiler at the Wannamaker Mill while the mail was changed at the Kresgeville Post Office. It would take 15 minutes to produce enough steam and pressure so he could start on his mail route.

The "Patriotic" car No. 1 had five seats, with rainproof top and curtains. Car No. 2 had three seats with top and curtains.

Democrats suffer blow

The Democratic party suffered a stiff blow on a national scale this week when Lawrence F. O'Brien resigned as the chairman of the national committee.

It was O'Brien who masterminded the late dash that missed by only a whisker of electing Hubert H. Humphrey as president of the United States last November.

O'Brien took over a tattered and torn Democratic campaign that was out of money and out of steam. He recharged the batteries, filled the treasury and possibly only because of a late start just missed winning the big prize.

O'Brien revealed that when he came to the aid of Humphrey it was only until after the election. However, the former Postmaster General has been under strong pressure from high ranking Democratic figures to retain the post.

But, the 51-year-old O'Brien has stuck by his guns and will step down from his party post as of next Tuesday to accept what he called an "outstanding opportunity" in private business.

The loss will be a tremendous blow to the Democratic Party which is badly in need of national leadership. The leadership of which we speak is a man to work behind the scenes, pull the strings and make the moves.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and Sen. Edmund Muskie give the party its necessary leadership in the public eye. But, there just aren't too many O'Briens available now to direct the actual campaign.

O'Brien was a tremendous organizer, a brilliant planner and a director who would make Hollywood blush with envy.

But, now the Democrats are looking for another O'Brien, only this time his name may possibly be John J. Gilligan, former representative from Ohio.

However, division is already showing and there may be a squabble before a successor is named for O'Brien at next Tuesday's meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

Sheriffs welcome

There will be more law enforcing individuals in Monroe County on July 16, 17, 18 and 19 than in any other single county in Pennsylvania.

These are the dates on which the Pennsylvania State Sheriffs' Assn. will hold its annual convention at Pocono Manor Inn.

It will also mark the first time this convention has been held in the Pocono Mountains, although it has been sought after for a number of years.

There may be as many as 300 individuals in attendance at the convention and each of the 67 counties in the Commonwealth is expected to be represented at the four-day outing.

The convention of sheriffs joins with the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners in turning the bulk of the state's convention interest toward the Poconos this year.

The County Commissioners are scheduled to hold their convention session at Tamiment and will also draw representatives from every county in the Commonwealth.

Oddly enough, a convention in the Poconos will also be a first for the commissioners. As in the case of the sheriffs, the County Commissioners' convention has long been sought by this area, but won approval for the first time this year.

Government and law enforcement will be well represented in the Poconos this summer.

Coin Corner

Anniversary coin set

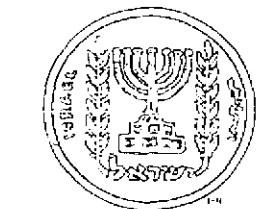

By ROBERT SVENSSON

Among nations of the world, perhaps none has catered more to coin collectors than Israel. The continuing issues of coins by this fledgling nation have been a delight to hobbyists.

In recent years, the demand has stepped up so considerably that these coins are becoming real collectors' items.

Recently, Israel announced the issuance of specimen sets of its new coins. These were released early in December, 1968, and marked the 21st anniversary of the founding of Israel.

The 1969 set consists of six coins, all newly minted. Denominations are One Lira (one pound), One-half Lira (see illustration), Twenty-five Agorot, Ten Agorot, Five Agorot, and One Agorot. Each coin bears the date 5729 in Hebrew.

Hebrew. The ancient Hebrew motif is interpreted by modern Israeli artisans in coin designs. Specimen sets have been minted from highly-polished dies which produce clearly-defined coins. Each set is encased in a special die-cut anniversary commemorative folder.

The price of the set was set at $3.50 which includes a 50 cents per set handling charge, but dealers will be offering them at higher rates.

Roscoe Drummond

Unity key issue

(EDITOR'S NOTE— This is the third in a series of five articles prepared by Roscoe Drummond and son Geoffrey on President-elect Richard M. Nixon, the problems he will face in office and how he will act to solve the many difficulties confronting the United States.)

WASHINGTON — There is one thing Richard Nixon must do as president or he won't be able to do much else.

That's unite the nation in mutual trust. He sees this as a foremost challenge and is facing it openly.

We must bring the country together again, he says, calm its angers, quiet its fears.

On the eve of the Civil War Lincoln faced nothing more difficult. Neither did Franklin D. Roosevelt in the midst of the Depression.

Nixon's task is tough because:

1 — He is a minority president, leading a minority party which controls neither house in Congress.

2 — Because his election was so close, Nixon must earn his mandate by governing, since the voters didn't give it to him on Nov. 5.

3 — The people who most need federal help — the blacks, the very poor, the unemployed, the ghetto-dwellers — voted against Nixon, and the people who will have to pay most of the cost voted for him.

Initial necessity

When Nixon says that his first necessity is to "bring the country together again," he means that as President he must rekindle the climate of trust and good will among the American people and that in so doing recover government by the consent of the governed. This is the heart of his goal.

He knows that if he can do that, nearly everything will be possible. He knows that if he fails, little will be possible.

To understand this problem we need to see what has gone wrong and what can be done to make it go right.

It seems to us that what has brought the American government near statehood is this:

So many Americans have become so impatient, so frustrated and disdainful at the slow pace of racial justice and other social progress and so divided over Vietnam that they seek to substitute government by violent protest for government by consent of the governed.

They are aided by many others who, though not violence-prone, accept or condone violence because they fail to see that the end of that road is either dictatorship or chaos.

Democracy in the United States can be preserved only when it is allowed to function.

Don MacLean

Rose Bowl?

WASHINGTON — Lt. Gen. Lew Walt, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, watched the New Year's Day bowl games on television at the home of Washington correspondent Jim Lucas.

General Walt decided to telephone Ohio State University coach Woody Hayes, an old friend, and congratulate him on his victory. (Ohio State gave General Walt the game ball when it beat Michigan State.)

Walt got the Pasadena, Calif., operator, but she'd never heard of the Rose Bowl. In all seriousness, she asked, "We have a Rose Bowl Motel listed, is that what you want?"

The general eventually reached the Rose Bowl, but missed talking to Hayes, who left immediately after the game for another trip to Vietnam, where he'd first met Walt.

Rep. Frank Thompson (D., N.J.) once again has crowded into my act by writing funny predictions for the year to come:

"January: The Nixon Cabinet holds its first meeting — on the Ed Sullivan Show. February: Strom Thurmond declines Supreme Court appointment; said he's too tired. March: Princeton faculty goes on strike demanding more

It has not been allowed to function well recently because violence has become so pervasive as to partially paralyze orderly political life.

The need now is to let national leadership start proving itself.

Consent earned

It has earned consent through election. It has won the verdict of the voters and it deserves and needs — if we are to continue to have a democratic government in the United States — in have that verdict accepted in good faith and good will by those who voted against it.

That is the democratic process. That is the heart of majority rule. That is the heart of the voluntary compact which makes democratic government possible; namely, consent by the minority to majority rule until the minority through peaceful uses of free assembly and free speech can create its own majority.

This is what Nixon means when he talks about bringing the American people "together once again in peace and mutual respect."

But it won't be achieved for the asking. It will take doing.

He won't have to do everything at once, but he will have to do enough soon of he is going to persuade the millions who voted against him that he is their President as well.

Nixon will need to demonstrate promptly that he is an Administration which "cares," that he is committed to bringing the long-deprived blacks and the very poor into the mainstream of the economy and to dealing with urban problems effectively.

He must make it visibly clear that as he tries new approaches to welfare aid, he will not prematurely cut back federal programs until he knows that his new approaches are working.

We find that there is a healthy open-mindedness among many Negro leaders and liberals toward the intentions of the Nixon Administration even though they preferred Hubert Humphrey and might be disposed to be very skeptical, even hostile. There is considerable skepticism, little hostility. They want Nixon to succeed.

Nixon, too, wants to succeed, wants to govern responsibly and responsibly. He knows that, although 43 per cent of the vote was enough to elect him, to succeed as President he must soon earn more than a 43 per cent support of the nation.

Monday — Does Richard Nixon have a political future? Can he transform a majority vote for change into majority support? Can he create a new voter coalition which could keep the Republicans in power for some years to come?

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Trouble mounting

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — Senate confirmation problems are mounting for two of the top-level appointees of President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

Pending committee consideration, the final outcome is in doubt. Whatever the final verdict, however, one harvest of the controversies is sure to be a crop of headlines which the new president would like to avoid.

As reported here previously, Walter J. Hickel, designated by Nixon to be Secretary of Interior, is under heavy critical fire. His public comments — especially his skepticism about "conservation's sake" — have alarmed some senators.

The Alaska governor's situation is not improving. His problems may well be getting more complex.

In more serious jeopardy, however, is the new president's selection of David Packard, West Coast industrialist and civic leader, to be Undersecretary of Defense. While Hickel's troubles stem from what he says, Packard's arise because of what he is.

Electronics executive

Packard is the much admired electronics executive who is willing to give up an annual income of nearly one million dollars to take the Pentagon's number two job at $30,000 a year. He is a founder, a major stockholder, and the chief executive officer of Hewlett-Packard Co., a firm which he started in a garage and which now sells nearly $300 million worth of electronic measuring equipment each year, about a third of it to the government and its contractors.

Since Charles E. Wilson served the Eisenhower Administration as secretary of defense, the Senate Armed Services Committee has required that top Pentagon aides have no interest in companies that do business with the Pentagon. Many officials, from Wilson of General Motors through Robert S. McNamara of Ford, have met the committee's standard, at some personal sacrifice.

Some top-ranking senators who admire Packard's record and his willingness to serve are privately asking whether he can ever meet the committee standard without doing unacceptable damage to his own financial interests.

President-elect Nixon was vice-president-elect when the late Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., pressed the first conflict-of-interest case against Wilson. Nixon is well aware of Packard's problem. In announcing Packard's appointment, press chief Herb Klein outlined Packard's proposed solution.

After resigning as his company's top executive, Packard proposed to sell all stocks owned by him and his wife in corporations which do defense business, except for Hewlett-Packard Co. That stock, some 3.6 million shares of it worth about $300 million, would be put into a short term trust which would pay all dividends — and any increase in the stock's value — to charitable and educational organizations.

"The trustees," said Packard in a statement of his own, "will be individuals selected by myself from the present membership of the board of directors of Hewlett-Packard Co., and will serve without compensation."

By the trusteeship Packard proposed to separate himself from his company for at least two years, or for the duration of his stay in government.

Top-ranking members of the Armed Services Committee, which will consider Packard's appointment, have been studying the Packard plan for a couple of weeks and researching the precedents. Their question is whether the trust would actually remove Packard from his company, which sold $34 million worth of electronics equipment to the Pentagon last year and another $80 million worth to prime government contractors.

Admitting that the proposal is only prudent, from Packard's point of view, some Senate experts question whether the plan actually takes Packard out of company operations. They wonder whether Packard could retain control of Hewlett-Packard through these trustees whom he would select from the company's present board.

Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., who will be Packard's boss at the Pentagon, believes there is a precedent for the plan in a trust arrangement approved when former Texas Gov. Price Daniel was named director of the Office of Emergency Planning. Senate experts note, however, that Daniel had only a small interest in an oil property which might have been enhanced by policies (on oil imports) for which Daniel made recommendations.

Packard would be bossing the Pentagon which would be doing business, directly and indirectly, with his company. Moreover, Laird is well aware that Daniel, a former senator, got the benefit of all doubts from his former colleagues. Packard may not be so lucky.

Letters to the Editor

Questions pattern

Editor, The Record:

Sen. Edward Kennedy's professed interest in reforming the Democratic Party is as convincing as Mayor Daley's stated aim of having an open Democratic Convention.

In all probability these two professional politicians will cooperate to secure the presidential nomination of Sen. Kennedy in 1972.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy's refusal to back Kennedy's bid for the position of Democratic whip in the Senate focused national attention on Kennedy's political objectives.

Consequently, McCarthy has become the target of critics who question his honor and loyalty to the liberal cause.

Since both Sen. Edmund Muskie and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey folded under the tremendous pressure of the Kennedy forces, only McCarthy remained to challenge and expose the current political myth that all the Kennedy brothers have a claim in the presidency because of their particular mystique.

Personable as Sen. Kennedy is, he need not be the inevitable Democratic presidential choice in 1972. That choice should be left to the rank-and-file members of the party when they meet four years from now.

This is probably one of the contributing factors governing McCarthy's decision.

Editor, The Record:

When you see so many families and individuals with difficulties, particularly around the holiday season, it is a pleasure to be able to do something about it, even if it is only temporary in some cases.

I wish to thank the members and staff of The Pocono Record for the kind help during the past Christmas season for aiding us in helping others. I would also like to say a big thank you to all of the hundreds of individuals who really "pitched in" to help in a very successful Christmas effort by the Salvation Army.

This was really a community effort of which we were very proud to be a part.

On behalf of the hundreds of persons in Monroe County who were helped, I wish to say thank you, and God bless you!

Delayed menstruation

Our daughter, 15 years old, is an excellent student in high school and seems to be a happy, well-adjusted child. The only source of distress is that she has not yet begun to menstruate. Although she mentions it rarely, I know that she is not satisfied with the instructions that "she be patient." She recently confessed that she feels inadequate when the discussion arises with her friends. We will be grateful for any suggestions you can make that would help.

Mrs. N.A., Virginia
Dear Mrs. A.: It is a delight to hear from a mother that her child is happy and well adjusted in this tumultuous age. I must confess that I have a great deal of faith in the values of the adolescent despite the fact that they are objects of a great deal of hostility because of their rebellion. I must whisper this because there is not always universal confession that "all of us" did the identical things in different ways. With proper education our moral values somehow survived and grew as we approached maturity.

Now back to the immediate medical problem. It is sometimes difficult for parents and doctors to project themselves into the emotional distress of a young girl who, unlike her peers, has not yet begun to menstruate. To her it is a matter of tremendous importance and, unless properly handled, leaves her stigmatized and with a feeling of personal inadequacy.

Even though your daughter may not express it openly she may unconsciously be aware of the fact that she is not "complete."

Despite the assurance that she will undoubtedly begin to menstruate normally before long, her reaction to the delay must not be minimized or treated lightly. This will only tend to exaggerate her emotional distress.

Young adolescents are not willing to accept the fact that time and time alone will remedy their problems. This may very well be the case, but children derive a tremendous amount of assurance from the fact that their problems are being studied by the doctor at regular intervals. The feeling that something is being done now makes time more bearable.

I am certain that your daughter has been studied to rule out any physical disorder in her ovaries, tubes or in the entire female tract. There are a number of congenital malformations and other defects, including hormone imbalance, that may be responsible for delayed menstruation.

Physicians specializing in the problems of adolescents know that these children have graduated from the pediatric age and now must be considered potential adults and treated as such.

Thyroid balance is usually studied in addition to the function of the hormones produced by the adrenal and pituitary gland. These complicated studies can be worthwhile.

It is very distressing when the study of a delay in menstruation is usually put off only to find later that the doctor and parents are guilty because "nothing had been done before."

Favorites picked

The stands will be filled and the participants a bit huskier when the year's number one football attraction, the Super Bowl, is played in Miami between the American and National Football League champions, Sunday. The NBC Television Network will colorcast the big event exclusively starting at 2:30 p.m. Cori Smith (left) and Nancy Neal have their favorites picked before the game begins.

To get a good job, get a good education

You may think you'll go places with a small education. But you're wrong! Starting to work with a too-small education is like running a race in cement track shoes. It's almost a sure bet you'll come in last in the race for the good-paying jobs. Today, to get a good job you need a good education. A good education is the first thing employers ask for. It proves you've got what it takes to handle a good job... a good-paying job... a job that gives you a chance to grow.

for you!

A little learning can be a dangerous thing...

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Until the Christmas bowling balls got broken in, there's likely to be some erratic scoring. It seems evident as the bowling leagues get back into full swing after a holiday recess.

Also being broken in are the new engagement rings. For a

Miss Linda Marsh

Linda Marsh engaged to Frank Smith

MARSHALLS CREEK — Mr. and Mrs. Lester Marsh of Marshalls Creek announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda, to Frank J. Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of East Stroudsburg RD 2.

Miss Marsh is a 1967 graduate of East Stroudsburg High School. She is employed as a secretary at Marshalls Creek Insulation Co.

Her fiancé is a 1964 graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and attended the Pennsylvania State University, Wilkes-Barre Extension. He is employed by Edward C. Hess Associates.

No date has been set for the wedding.

while, judging solely by the evidence of which hand they were using most ostentatiously, all of them seemed to be left-handed.

All of the organizations are getting back into full swing, too, and it does seem as if many of them had planned their most stimulating programs for January to lighten the tedium of the post-holiday slump when all the party candles have been doused.

Not all the candles—I understand they have some 90 reservations for the Shawnee County Club winter get-together tonight. And a few other smart people waited to entertain until the guests had a chance to catch up on their sleep and get their appetites back.

What I need is to get my bearings back. I got lost on Stokes Mill Road, a fact that would have seemed impossible in the days when we used to walk it every day to go swimming and had Scout meetings at the Holbrooks.

And I also need to take down the Christmas lights, take the star out of the window, and take my Christmas presents out of the boxes and generally get organized for a season when everybody else seems to be much more efficient.

Hospital patients receive gifts

STROUDSBURG — Christmas gifts were given to patients at the Allentown State Hospital by the Monroe County Mental Health Assn. and the Scroplism Club of Monroe County.

Two large boxes, containing perfumes, powders, lipsticks, and religious articles, were delivered to the State Hospital on Dec. 23, by Frank J. Goehal, member of the local board of directors, Mental Health Association.

Drug use on PTA agenda for public

STROUDSBURG — With drug use increasing among county high school students, the Elementary Parent Teachers Assn. of East Stroudsburg has scheduled an open meeting on drug addiction for Wednesday, Jan. 15 at the J.M. Hill School.

The meeting is open to the public. Dr. Frank Dracos, president, emphasized. It will begin at 7:30.

The speaker will be Trooper Alfred Drodowski of the Pennsylvania State Police. A film on drug addiction "Pit of Despair" will be shown and the state trooper will speak on local conditions.

Probation office work Council theme

STROUDSBURG — Henry McCool, Monroe County probation officer, will speak on the work of the probation office at the meeting of the Monroe Council of Republican Women on Wednesday, Jan. 15 at the Motel Inn Towne, Stroudsburg.

Any interested person is invited to attend the meeting. Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis is chairman of the hostess committee.

Grid mothers plan new year

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg High School Football Mothers Club held their first meeting for 1969 with President Joan Brush presiding.

Projects and programs for the coming season were discussed. All returns from the candy sale are due at the Feb. 3 meeting which will be held in the faculty room at East Stroudsburg High School.

Music Club Tosca study open to opera buffs

STROUDSBURG — Opera buffs, students and others interested in opera are invited by the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs to a study session on "Tosca" to be held Tuesday Jan. 14, at 8:30 in the Sunday School rooms of the Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg, North Eighth St., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. E. W. Holden and Ivor Gothic will tell the story of Tosca and will present excerpts from the opera through piano numbers and records. Both Mrs. Holden and Gothic are concert pianists in their own right.

Gothic has had a Town Hall recital and has been very successful in the Manhattan area. Mrs. Holden, who moved here with her husband several years ago, is a member of the state board of the Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs.

Librettos have been secured from the Metropolitan Opera Guild and will be on sale for those of the audience who wish to follow them for the performance.

It has been requested that

Doll show held for children

STROUDSBURG — The doll collection of Miss Beatrice Gorgy was featured at a doll show sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Stroudsburg United Methodist Church.

Little girls, bringing their own dolls and accompanied by their mothers, heard her tell the story of each of her dolls, some of which dated back to her childhood. Some of the dolls were only an inch tall.

There were dolls from Holland, Italy, Greece, Mexico, Portugal, Poland and Japan. Three of the dolls were in full dress of the Swiss guards at the Vatican. There were wooden dolls, replicas of very old dolls more than 100 years old.

Most of the dolls had been dressed by Miss Gorgy who is much in demand for making Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy dolls in three sizes.

Each child received a brass bell and older girls were given rain bonnets. The children used the bells to accompany themselves in Jingle Bells. Punch and cookies were served by Mrs. Ray Singer and her committee, Mrs. Kenneth Barthold and Mrs. William Block.

The executive board and chairmen of circles will meet Monday, Jan. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Family Fare

Charles M. Williams

Early days on railroad recalled by 90-year-old

STROUDSBURG — "Life is easier today. There is a wider space between income and outgo," Charles M. Williams of 411 Stokes Mill Road observed on his 90th birthday on Thursday.

Recalling his first job with a big lumber company near his native Thornhurst, "They were pretty close together then," he said.

He made $1.50 a day, and if he worked every day could make about $36 a month. However, the workers had to live in company houses and trade at the company store which had no competition.

After he married, he went to Monaca and got a job on what was then the New York Susquehanna and Western Railroad. It later became the Wilkes-Barre and Eastern, still later, was acquired by the Erie, and is now the Erie-Lackawanna Railway.

He holds a gold pass from the present railroad, and one of his most cherished birthday gifts was a commemorative medal from the American Assn. of Railroaders.

The medal has been struck off to commemorate the completion of the first trans-continental railroad, and on its face bears the golden spike and the dates 1869-1969, and on the reverse side the two trains meeting in Utah.

Presentation of the medal was arranged by his son, Marvin, of Silver Springs, Md., who had come to help celebrate his father's birthday.

"I only had two jobs in my life," he elder Williams recalled, and it was obvious that the railroad loomed large in his memories.

"I loved railroading," he said. "Though I don't know why. It was hard work, and so dangerous that a railroad man couldn't get life insurance."

He started as a brakeman and in five years had risen to conductor. A conductor had complete responsibility for his train, and he liked the responsibility and the strict discipline of those days.

Williams also has many memories of this locality. When he moved his family to the Stokes Mill Road section about 60 years ago, there were only two other houses on a road which now has innumerable cross streets and developments branching off the original lane.

"The changes I've seen," he recalled from the days when there was no running water, no inside plumbing, no electricity, no radio and no telephones.

He and his wife had three children, Marvin, of Silver Springs, Md.; Mrs. Charles Martin; and Arthur, who died this year and with whom he made his home.

Mrs. Arthur Williams and his children had arranged a birthday celebration with a cake and gifts. He also received flowers and many cards.

His recipe for a long life: "I'm a Christian, and I believe that when you're born the Lord knows just how long you are going to live and you die in His own good time."

His mind is still keen, and he is still able to take short walks when the weather is good, but he ended the interview on a wry note: "Don't wish me many more birthdays," he said with a smile.

Kiwanis honors nine veterans

STROUDSBURG — Legion of Honor Certificates were presented to nine longtime Kiwanians Wednesday at the Kiwanis Club lunch at Holiday Inn.

Those recognized for long service were the Rev. Peter Wohlson, 50 years; Julius Staff, 45 years; Dr. Claus Jordan, Henry Tucker, Charles Grace and Dr. T. I. Metzgar, 35 years; Herbert Crane, 30 years, and James Groner and Elwood Hintze, 25 years.

CANADENSIS — After many frustrating stops and starts along the inland straits where language barriers, customs and reams of red tape reigned supreme, a young Czech refugee couple were successfully launched on the seas of matrimony Saturday in Canadensis.

Bohumir (Bob) Maracek, 24 and Jana (Janet) Kohoukova, 20, childhood sweethearts in Bohemia, were married by the Rev. Andrew Maloney in St. Bernadette's Roman Catholic Church, Canadensis Saturday morning.

Rev. Maloney, down with the flu all week, got out of a sick bed to perform the marriage ceremony. George Sopko of Mountainhome was best man; Betty Hreha of Skytop was matron of honor and William Krummel of Canadensis gave the bride away.

Mrs. Robeling Gravel of Canadensis arranged the wedding reception which was held in Evans-Biltz Post 992, American Legion, Canadensis Saturday night.

One of the Slovak customs called for the bride to remove her wedding veil and substitute a babushka. This signifies change from maid to matron.

The wedding reception's finale was an attempt by the bride groom to kidnap the bride, locking arms and spreading their feet for the impact of the bridegroom's series of rushes to try to break through the solid ring to fetch his bride.

After several futile attempts he crashed through the weakest link in the chain by hurling the head and shoulders of the smallest man in the group, grabbed his bride and rushed out of the reception hall for a free honeymoon at the Pines Hotel and Motel, Canadensis.

The couple were in Austria when the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia. Maracek, a photographer for a Prague newspaper, had finished his assignment in Austria and was about to return to his homeland with Miss Kohoukova when they learned of the Russian invasion.

They decided not to return to Prague. Maracek had to leave behind several expensive lenses to his Bronica camera.

The couple were among more than 30 Czech refugees who were brought to the Poconos by Emil Wagner, managing director of Mount Airy Lodge, Swiftwater, who had learned that the group did not have sponsors waiting for them in New York when they arrived from Europe.

Wagner arranged with Pocono

Mountains Vacation Bureau member resorts to provide shelter and employment for the refugees.

The couple was hired by Skytop Lodge, Maracek as a cook and Miss Kohoukova as a waitress. Mrs. Gravel and George Sopko, aware of the couple's desire for marriage, began to contact local and county officials in an attempt to speed up the marriage timetable.

Since Miss Kohoukova was 20, she would have to obtain the parental consent required by Pennsylvania law for persons under 21.

Miss Kohoukova had brought a parental consent form in English signed by her parents in Czechoslovakia but it was not notarized as the law requires.

Mrs. Florence Ridgeway, Deputy Monroe County prothonotary with the approval of her superior, Frank J. Smith, decided to make an exception in this case and let the notarized form from her parents arrive after the wedding.

Sopko who acted as interpreter for the couple in their dealings with the prothonotary officials said that Maracek will go into television or become a professional photographer as soon as he has mastered English.

Both bride and bridegroom said they were overwhelmed by American hospitality and generosity, according to Mrs. Gravel.

Pocono Pete on wildlife for Woman's Club fete

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Esther Mott, who will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs on Monday at 2 p.m. at the Stroud Community House, is as unique as her nickname, "Pocono Pete."

She is the only female field agent in the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters. Mrs. Mott went to work for the department 22 years ago as a watcher on the fire tower at Big Pocono.

"A fire watcher has to develop hobbies or get another job," Mrs. Mott said in commenting on the isolation of the work.

Mrs. Mott decided to develop her talents. She composed poetry, wrote articles for magazines and state publications and made an intensive study of native wild life by adopting and raising woodland waifs.

She also turned to taxidermy, never killing for this purpose but preserving animals and birds already dead.

Mrs. Mott became a lecturer on the lore of the wild, and in the summer often giving as many as six lectures a week to groups of all ages visiting the park.

For 11 years, Mrs. Mott was fire warden and was then promoted to assistant foreman of Big Pocono State Park. In this capacity she is in charge of the local headquarters which she is transforming into a museum of woodland life.

She will speak on "Nature Study of Pocono Animals."

Plans for the meeting were completed at a meeting of the executive board this week. Dessert will be served at 1:30 preceding the meeting. Because of illness, more volunteers are needed for the Well Baby Clinic, it was announced.

Plans were made for a card party in April.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — When this Voice of Broadway was muted momentarily by flu and flew off to Palm Beach, it gave us a chance to observe that comparatively rare animal, the multi-millionaire in his traditional luxury zoo, and that quietly lovely resort did not disappoint us. It remains aloof from most of the nation's and the world's troubles, its facade rich, clean, fresh-smelling, its lavishment understated, its inner circles concentrically unflamboyant, its scandals more small-town than big-city tabloid, although a wily shooting naturally grabs metropolitan attention because of the social and financial prominence of its central figures. . . . But a nationally recognizable name (female) didn't get even onto a police blotter when she twirled into some alcoholically pre-New Year's Eve convulsions; she was trundled off to the pokey to sweat it out, sleep it off, and then forget it.

The police in Palm Beach run a carefully protective department, their decisions firm, traffic laws scrupulously insisted and observed their watchfulness constant — while we were at Morton Downey's home a member of the extremely polite, friendly and useful constabulary rang the bell to inform us someone had left on the lights in a station wagon; Morton informed us they patrol every street with care and constancy; like Beverly Hills? We asked and Morton said, "Much better, in every way."

Our first visits to Palm Beach a couple of decades ago included stops at gambling casinos, run with dutiful calm lack of public secrecy; everyone seemed to know the locations and the passwords or the doormen. . . . Bradley's famous gambling casino remains a Palm Beach legend, and Col. Bradley continues the cynosure of admiration for free, old days when polite games of chance prevailed. . . . The colonel brooked no noise or nonsense and remained so highly regarded he even ran his own stable of great racehorses without a hint of public suspicion as today definitely would attach to any modern gambler of the Las Vegas-Caribbean persuasion; there was no Mafia link to Col. Bradley which might compromise the integrity of his horseflesh.

Still not even Col. Bradley could become a member of the hyper-exclusive Everglades Club which quietly seems to skip all the laws of modernity as it smugs along in a casually selective style. . . . Couple of fellows were "operating-small" as the bet-set says it after Col. Bradley went to that great roulette wheel in the sky but they attached only to the tail end of an era and shortly disappeared.

There are rumblings of course that some residual gambling operations in the Palm Beaches have joined up with the Mafia, and with considerable reason.

One gent familiar officially on the books of the FBI and national and international crime investigators operates with such cool that he's even been seen in photos with high ranking police officers — but not of Palm Beach itself which seems to keep its oscutcheon as attractively tidy as the great homes themselves.

There is large diminution in the Kennedy Concern, and the ruling days of the Irish Brahmins remain abeyant, but the Kennedys are looked at in retrospect far more fondly than when Jack Kennedy was in alternate residence in his Winter White House at Col. Michael Paul's superbly restrained ocean front Taj Mahal, and in summers at Morton Downey's commodious mansion at Hyannis Port, Cape Cod.

The guest list at the Coconuts would have delighted any cafe owner in brighter Manhattan days; the lineup would have given the late saloon arbiters John (El Morocco) Perona and Sherman (Stork Club) Billingsley delighted palpitations and enough society-page pictures for a month of N.Y. publicity; Palm Beach took it in stride and The Shiny Sheet ran a flock of candid shots all in one edition. There always is another day, another clutch of "names" should anyone care or bother to photograph them.

Ann Landers

Molested girl relieved

Dear Ann Landers: God bless you for printing that letter about the old uncle who molested the little girls in the family. You'll never know what you did for me.

I am 16 years old and for years — exactly how many, I can't remember — I have kept a secret tucked inside me. Just reading that letter has made me feel 100 per cent better. I always thought I was a freak — that no one but me had ever had so horrible an experience. Now I know I am not alone.

I couldn't have been more than four years old when my uncle did things to me that I now realize he had no business doing. It all started when he took me swimming. I didn't know what he was doing and I didn't realize it was wrong. After he molested me he took me for long rides and bought me candy. He always told me never to tell anybody what happened.

My uncle died when I was seven. I remember how happy I was. I really feared and hated him. And then I felt guilty because everybody was crying and I was glad.

Please, Ann Landers, tell your readers how little girls can be protected. Thank you for giving me the chance to express myself on a subject that has been haunting me for years. BEEN THERE

Dear Ann: I'm glad you wrote, and I urge others to do so. It's good therapy. And now for the advice: Mothers should be alert to all male friends and relatives who are overly attentive to their young children. When youngsters return from a ride or an outing they should always be asked where they went, whom they saw and what happened. Any reluctance to speak should be interpreted as a danger signal.

The number of children who are molested and raped every year is appalling and the guilty party is usually not a stranger, interestingly enough, but a family friend or a relative.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter was 15 in September but she looks and acts older. Sandy started to date when she was 12. I wasn't very happy about it but she was always ahead of her years and there was no way I could hold her back. Sandy has gone crazy over a sailor who is stationed near here. The boy is 20 years old, doesn't say much, and for the life of me I can't figure what she sees in him. He has a hula dancer tattooed on one arm and a U.S. flag on the other. The boy is never without a cigaret

Opening lead — ten of spades. Let's say you're declarer at six notrump and West leads the ten of spades. There seems to be very little to the play of the hand, so you win the spade with the ace and lead a low heart, finessing the jack.

East takes the king and returns a spade to the queen, but when you return to your hand with a low heart to the queen, West shows out and you find that the hand is not quite as simple as you thought at the start.

You have eleven sure tricks and you only hope now is to guess which way to take the two-way club finesse. If you're a good guesser, you make the slam, but, actually, you should not be in this predicament because proper play at the beginning of the hand would have guaranteed the contract 100 per cent.

The correct method of play is to lead a low heart to the ace at trick two, deliberately rejecting the finesse. Regardless of how the hearts prove to be divided, you can now be certain of twelve tricks.

Let's first look at the actual case. You continue with a low heart from dummy at trick three. East cannot afford to go up with the king, since that would present you with four heart tricks, so you win the heart with the queen.

Even though West shows out you are still in fine shape because all you now have to do to acquire a twelfth trick is lead a club to the ace and finesse the jack on the way back. Win or lose, you have twelve ironclad tricks.

Had West shown up with four hearts to the K-10, your task would have been that much simpler. East would fail on the second heart lead and you would easily score four heart tricks. The question of a club finesse would not enter the picture at all. You would have tricks to burn.

House of the week

Bavarian styling throughout

By ANDY LANG

Families looking for something different in a modest house—but not one that is too "far out"—will find much to admire in this latest House of the Week.

With a charming traditional exterior in the Bavarian mold, it carries the Old World theme inside, especially in the living room directly to the right of the entrance foyer. The ceiling is the cathedral type and laced with beams. The window on the far wall, across from the entrance arch, is a full story-and-a-half in height. There is a bank of three tall front windows with leaded diamond panes and a long window seat. To the rear is the log-burning fireplace and alongside, a French door access to the porch.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern has placed above the entrance arch a balcony that overhangs 16 inches into the living room. Framed by the beams of the cathedral ceiling, the balcony, with balustered rail, overlooks the room from the master bedroom above. Because of the balcony's height, privacy in the inner part of the bedroom is not sacrificed.

The in-line kitchen and dining room are open-planned to give more flexibility to the space. The dining room might even be finished as a continuation of the kitchen and used as both a family room and for dining. But if a separate room is preferred, a partition can be constructed between the rooms. Outdoor living is well provided with the 12-by-22 foot side porch with access from the living room and the kitchen for serving outdoor meals. The front porch, 26' long, can be used for sitting and also provides a weather-protected entrance for the front door.

A service entrance on the right side near the garage enters a vestibule which contains all the necessary ingredients for good traffic control and the prevention of dirt tracking—basement entrance, wash-up bath and laundry.

Two bedrooms are on the first floor, with easy and private access to the bath. The second floor has two bedrooms and a split bath. The master bedroom has the balcony which overlooks the living room below. The balcony is 13' wide.

Exterior materials are steel casement windows, rough sawn boards and battens, a special type of siding, wooden roof shingles and stone. The one-car garage is set back a considerable distance from the front of the house and has a large storage area. With the Bavarian-styled roof giving the over-all structure a distinctive appearance, its traditional lines enable it to fit nicely into the architectural pattern of any neighborhood.

Z-75 STATISTICS
Design Z-75 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, a bath, laundry area and foyer on the first floor, with a total habitable area of 1,208 square feet. Also on this level are covered porch, a terrace and a one-car garage with storage space. Upstairs are two bedrooms and an extra large bath, totaling 549 square feet. Overall dimensions are 53 feet five inches by 54 feet.

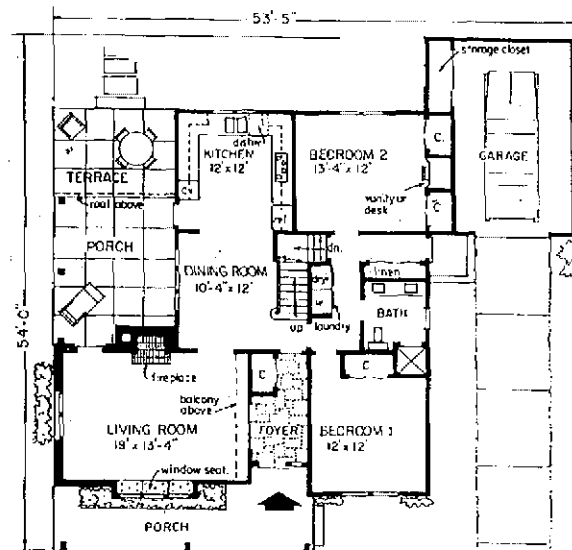

Touches of old world architecture are evident in this four-bedroom, one-and-a-half story house, with special emphasis on the Bavarian-type roof.

Large covered porch at rear left can be entered from the living room, dining room and kitchen.

Balustered rail along balcony and beams of the cathedral ceiling combine to give this living room individual character. Entrance arch and long window seats add to informal atmosphere.

first floor plan

second floor plan

Floor plans: Sizable foyer leads to formal and informal areas of the house on the left; the two bedrooms, bath and laundry on the right; the stairway to the two upstairs bedrooms; and the steps to the basement. There are two inside entrances to the side porch.

On the house

DID YOU KNOW—

That paste filler applied to an open-pored wood should be brushed on with the grain, then across the grain, rubbed across the grain and, finally, wiped lightly with the grain?

That a rumbling noise when hot water is turned on may be due to a too-high setting of the heater thermostat?

That studs should be placed 16 inches apart "on center," which means 16 inches from the center of one stud to the center of the next, an important distinction if you are applying panels 16 inches in width?

That the collecting of water at a single point in a house gutter may be caused simply by a loose hanger, strap or other fastener?

That the adhesive used in applying asphalt or vinyl asbestos tile should be allowed to dry to the touch before putting down the tiles.

QUESTION: I visited a friend's house which had knotty pine walls in a finished attic. The job had been done professionally. The walls had what my friend called a silver beige finish. He didn't know much about how this finish had been achieved except to say that he knew the workmen had used an aluminum paint. Could you hazard a guess as to how to get a silver beige finish?

ANSWER: The effect you describe probably was obtained by applying aluminum paint, then immediately wiping it off. After a day or two, use a clear finish, such as varnish, shellac, lacquer or one of the synthetics. Suggest trying it out first on an inconspicuous part of a panel.

QUESTION: We are having a house built in a section of the country where it is always warm regardless of the season of the year. Is it necessary to use insulation?

ANSWER: Most definitely, yes. Insulation keeps out heat as well as cold.

For instance, chestnut, butternut, basswood and red cedar are among the hardwoods which are easier to work than some of the softwoods. Also, the same kind of trees grown in different localities may have different working characteristics that affect usefulness. All that can be said on a general basis is that hardwoods USUALLY are more expensive, harder to work with and better for beautiful furniture and cabinet projects.

Softwoods grow much faster and are more abundant, thus are usually cheaper. They have many more usable qualities, are easier to handle and keep their shape well. Among the softwoods are the many varieties of pine, cedar, spruce, hemlock, cypress, redwood and fir. Among the hardwoods are walnut, oak, maple, beech, birch, hickory, elm, cherry, gum, sycamore, cottonwood and ash.

Here's how

Installing own ceiling lights

By VIVIAN BORWN

Ceiling light fixtures have been inching their way back into fashion for many years.

In the last three decades the outlets in favor of lamps and wall sconces. The old time fixtures weren't particularly pretty though they were more useful as decorative accessories than instruments of good light.

Now one sees massive ceiling lights—crystal, metal, wood, even in small urban apartments. Newer fixtures are designed to spread the light and enhance the decorative scheme whether used in the kitchen, living room or dining room.

But many people are still stuck with capped outlets and with old-fashioned ceiling fixtures, even though they would like a new fixture. The extent of such a project and the uncertainty of labor costs keep them from updating their ceiling.

Well, why not do it yourself? Installation of new fixtures is neither complicated nor dangerous, advises the American Home Lighting Institute.

They advise getting the proper equipment—pliers, wrench, scissors, file and electrician's tape. Installation instructions and necessary hardware should come with the fixture. It is worth checking the contents of the package before beginning. If something is missing from the kit, be sure you get it before you begin the project.

Before beginning the job, check local laws. Some towns encourage people to do their own wiring and provide homeowners with information on doing such jobs safely and properly. Other towns insist that only licensed electricians may do the work.

Here are the lighting

institute's directions for putting in a new fixture:

First, turn off current to the old fixture. (It may even be better to throw the main switch at the fuse box, if you are squeamish about it or can't identify the right one.)

Next, remove the canopy covering the fixture mounting and clip the two fixture wires. Remove the fixture from the mounting. Old-style fixtures usually are screwed to a center-threaded stud in the ceiling box. Some are fastened to metal straps which are in turn attached to the box with screws and can be removed by loosening screw that hold the fixture to the strap.

If the old fixture strap is the same as the new one, leave it in place. Otherwise, mount the new fixture strap and attach the fixture to the strap.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: I am constantly confused by the terms hardwood and softwood. Sometimes when I buy what the lumber dealer calls softwood, I find it difficult to handle. And sometimes I am pleasantly surprised when a hardwood is easy to work with and easy on the tools.

ANSWER: The terms hardwood and softwood refer to botanical classifications. The softwoods generally come from the evergreen or coniferous trees. The hardwoods are from the broadleaved trees which shed their leaves each year. As it happens, the woods from the coniferous trees usually are harder than those from the broadleaved or deciduous trees. But this is not always so.

For instance, chestnut, butternut, basswood and red cedar are among the hardwoods which are easier to work than some of the softwoods. Also, the same kind of trees grown in different localities may have different working characteristics that affect usefulness. All that can be said on a general basis is that hardwoods USUALLY are more expensive, harder to work with and better for beautiful furniture and cabinet projects.

Softwoods grow much faster and are more abundant, thus are usually cheaper. They have many more usable qualities, are easier to handle and keep their shape well. Among the softwoods are the many varieties of pine, cedar, spruce, hemlock, cypress, redwood and fir. Among the hardwoods are walnut, oak, maple, beech, birch, hickory, elm, cherry, gum, sycamore, cottonwood and ash.

Scouts note increase in members

STROUDSBURG — James Kovacs, Pocono District executive, announced a year-end membership of 1,169 boys in 37 units throughout Monroe County. This represents a 13.8 per cent increase in membership over a year ago, and is the largest number of boys ever registered in the district.

The Pocono District of the Minsi Trails Council recently installed the following officers for 1969: Col. Paul Poulin, district chairman; Victor Hochne, vice chairman; Asher Resh, district commissioner, and the following operating committee chairmen: advancement, David Terrell; activities, Al Van Driesen; camping, Jack Raymond; finance, John Pentz; health and safety, Neil Ruddy; leadership training, Henry Kulp; new unit organizing, Mason Linn.

Combined meetings

Scouts of the district voted to combine the monthly commissioners staff and district committee meetings. The combined meeting will be held the second Monday of the month at the Stroudsburg YMCA.

Al Van Driesen reported on plans for the up-coming summer camp season. Dates, fees and program were reviewed.

Jack Raymond announced plans for the Klondike Derby to be held on Feb. 15 at Camp Minsi. The derby is a competitive Boy Scout event with an Eskimo flavor.

Asher Resh reported five scouts have already applied to attend the national scout jamboree this summer in Idaho. The quota for the district is seven boys.

Neil Ruddy announced the Delaware Valley Area Council was holding its 50th anniversary recognition dinner today at the Hotel Easton. Ruddy also reported that he was preparing a first aid problem for the Klondike Derby.

TIRAC urges state to build wider 209

HARRISBURG — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) this week urged construction of a relocated Route 209 from Echo Lake to Milford as a four-lane, limited access highway.

TIRAC's executive director,

Frank W. Dressler, made the plea during a State Highway Department Public hearing in Harrisburg. The Highway Department's Bureau of Advanced Planning in 1966 recommended that Route 209 be relocated and reconstructed as a four-lane highway.

Since then, a new route has been chosen. A few months ago, however, the State Highway Commission scuttled plans to construct the highway with four lanes due to a lack of funds.

The Commission agreed, however, to allow the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to reconstruct the highway with two lanes and that the Highway Department would acquire the necessary right-of-way for the eventual expansion into four lanes. The right-of-way would also include land for interchanges.

Dressler, however, urged that the Department does not delay in its proposal to expand the route into four lanes. Dressler was accompanied by Monroe County Commissioner Elwood Hintze and Pike County Commissioner Jay Schroeder.

In his prepared testimony, Dressler also urged that the current proposed relocation route be maintained. The new location, about two miles west of the existing Route 209, was outlined during a public hearing last year in Dingman's Ferry, Pike County.

Dressler urged that the chosen new route remain since numerous government agencies have already started future development plans of the region on the assumption that Route 209 will be relocated on the route already chosen.

The National Park Service is using the relocated 209 as the western boundary for the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area (DWNRA).

Dressler also said that "provision should be made in the State Highway Improvement Program for replacement or improvement to Legislative Route 51001 in Pike County."

Bartlett has been keeping Mickey posted on the progress of the highway and in his last letter said "tell him (Mickey) to be patient. I shall post him well ahead of time when the ceremonies are scheduled."

Prior to his employment at the workshop, Mickey was trained and schooled at the Day Care Training Center in Reeders, a special education program of the Monroe County Public Schools which prepares trainable retarded children up to 21 years of age for a useful occupation.

Mrs. Strunk is public awareness chairman for the county chapter, association for retarded children and a member of the Carbon-Monroe-Pike counties Mental Health and Mental Retardation board.

Mickey's father is vice president of the Burnley Workshop board of directors and past president of the local unit of PARC.

Boy caught in burglary

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township Police Friday at 1:10 a.m. apprehended a 16-year-old Stroud Township boy burglarizing a coin box at a coin operated laundry on Rt. 611 in the Stroud Township Shopping Center.

According to police, the youth was caught in the act of burglarizing a coin box on one of the washing machines.

The youth has been turned over to the custody of his parents.

Mrs. Strunk is public awareness chairman for the county chapter, association for retarded children and a member of the Carbon-Monroe-Pike counties Mental Health and Mental Retardation board.

Mickey's father is vice president of the Burnley Workshop board of directors and past president of the local unit of PARC.

10 make not guilty pleas during court arraignments

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Court Friday received indication that the January term of trial court may be lengthy as 10 of 19 individuals arraigned pleaded not guilty to crimes of both a criminal nature and vehicle code violations.

Of the 19 arraignments, eight were concerned with charges of a criminal nature with the remaining 11 being motor violations.

George Wall, 20, 224 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, pleaded not guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter and made the same plea to a companion charge of assault and battery.

Continues bail

After hearing the plea, Judge Arlington W. Williams allowed Wall to remain at liberty and continued the bail which had been set at $2,000 on the involuntary manslaughter charge and $1,000 on the assault and battery charge.

Helen Felthman, 2011 N. 5th St., Stroudsburg, also pleaded not guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter and was permitted to remain at liberty.

Curtis Miller and Dennis B. Mullane, confined in the Monroe County Jail, pleaded not guilty to charges of burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods. Both men were remanded to the custody of the jail since neither could meet bail requirements.

Bail for the burglary charge had been set at $4,000 and $1,000 on larceny and receiving stolen goods.

James Kishpaugh Jr., 129 N. Second St., Stroudsburg, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of obstructing a police officer in the performance of duty.

George Sterba, West

Hazleton, presently confined in the Monroe County Jail, pleaded not guilty to charges of worthless checks and forgery of worthless checks. Sterba was remanded to the jail in default of bail in the amount of $2,000. James E. Koerner, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, also pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunken driving and failure to stop at the scene of an accident in which he was involved.

Steven G. Miller, Stroudsburg R.D. 2, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and Barry Parsons, 20 Beers St., Stroudsburg, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of operating without a license.

Entering a plea of not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated was Albert C. Kraft, Irvington, N.J.

In all cases where guilty pleas were entered, Judge Williams deferred sentencing pending the findings of a pre-sentence investigation.

Dennis Marks, 220 Main St., Stroudsburg, entered a guilty plea to a charge of use of narcotic drugs.

Stanley F. Bush, East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery.

Entering guilty pleas to charges of driving while intoxicated were Charles A. Counterman, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, Daniel E. Reimer, Bethlehem, and Frank Holt, Doylestown.

Paul A. Hulsizer, Mount Pocono, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a license, second and third offenses. Alfred M. Papko, Wilkes-Barre, pleaded guilty to a charge of operating without a license and Robert C. Weidner, 540 Main St., Stroudsburg, entered the same plea to a charge of driving while his license was suspended.

Attorney Peter J. O'Brien, entered a motion to quash an indictment against his client, Joseph Bushinsky, Fort Allen Apartments, Weissport, and his client made no plea Friday. Bushinsky was indicted for hit and run.

Kenneth G. Bell, Jr.

Bell named to manage at airport

MOUNT POCONO — President of Aviation Services International, Inc., Eugene Locke, announced the appointment of Kenneth G. Bell, Jr. of Paradise Valley as manager of Pocono Mountain Airport, under ASI.

ASI is the contracted fixed base operator for the airport in Mount Pocono, under the direction of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority which owns Monroe County's only municipal airport.

Effective as of Jan. 1, Bell's appointment gives him full responsibility of the fixed base operation, charter service and flight school instruction.

A native of Colorado, Bell had studied architectural engineering at Colorado State University in Denver when he developed an interest in flying.

County resident expires at 67

EAST STROUDSBURG — William Eiger, 67, of Marshalls Creek, died Friday in the General Hospital of Monroe County where he had been a patient.

Born in New York City, he was a son of the late Michael and Rachel Shiff Eiger.

Mr. Eiger was a broker for Goodbody & Co., Wall St., New York City, for many years. He retired in 1965, and moved to Marshalls Creek.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Helen Feltner Eiger, at home, and a son, Richard W. Eiger, Lincoln Park, N.J.

Cremation will be on Monday in a Long Island, N. Y. crematory.

Lanterman Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Motor violations costing pair $700

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Judge Arlington W. Williams Friday fined two men a total of $700 for violations of the motor vehicle code.

Edward J. Yale, Wilkes Barre, was fined $300 plus costs after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while his license was under suspension. The fine was the maximum for the charge. He was also placed on probation for one year.

In setting the maximum fine, Judge Williams explained that Friday's appearance before the bench was Yale's fifth for motor violations and was the 12th time Yale had appeared before the courts for criminal and vehicle code offenses inclusive.

Judge Williams informed Yale that had it not been for Yale's heart condition, which was revealed in the pre-sentence investigation, Yale would have been sentenced to jail.

Yale was given 60 days in which to pay the fine.

Jack E. Singer, Stroudsburg, was fined $200 plus costs of prosecution and placed on probation for six months after pleading guilty to a charge of driving without a license, second offense.

Bey's conviction appeal in court

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Judge Arlington W. Williams Friday presided over the post conviction hearing of Rasheed Abdula Bey, Buck Hill Falls, now confined in the State Correctional Institution at Graterford, Pa.

On Dec. 12, 1966, Bey was sentenced to Graterford after pleading guilty to the sale of one marijuana cigarette to a minor. He was sentenced to an indeterminate sentence which was not to be less than five years or greater than ten years.

The prison sentence was his second period of confinement in connection with a narcotic charge.

Bey filed a post conviction petition on April 25, 1968, in which he alleged that his constitutional rights had been violated in the entire proceedings. At that time Attorney Peter J. O'Brien was appointed to serve as his counsel.

Amended petition

In September of 1968, O'Brien filed an amended petition in which the main issues centered around his not being advised of a mandated sentence concerning his conviction of a second narcotics offense and the fact that coercion was used to invoke a guilty plea from him at his trial.

J. W. Shaffer succumbs

EAST STROUDSBURG — John W. Shaffer, 88, of 740 Brown St., Stroudsburg, died Friday in the General Hospital of Monroe County where he had been a patient.

Born in Weissport, he was a son of the late Jacob and Christina Heiney Shaffer.

He was a retired silk worker. His wife, Mrs. Mary Motz Shaffer, died 14 years ago. He was a member of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church and the Men of Retirement Age Club, Stroudsburg.

Survivors include three sons, Lowell and Vincent Shaffer, both of Stroudsburg, and Eugene Shaffer, East Stroudsburg; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Helms, East Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Mildred Barry, Stroudsburg; 14 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren; two brothers, J. Frank Shaffer, Phillipsburg, N.J., and Thomas Shaffer, Easton, and a sister, Mrs. Emma Baker, Burlington, N.J.

Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the William R. Thomas Funeral Home with the Rev. David G. High officiating.

Burial will be in Prospect Cemetery.

At the suggestion of the family, contributions may be made to the Men of Retirement Age Club, Stroudsburg.

There will be no visitation.

Open house held at new apartments

EAST STROUDSBURG — An open house was conducted Friday at the new 112 unit Green Valley View Country Club Garden Apartment complex on Green Tree Drive in East Stroudsburg which cost in excess of one million dollars to construct.

Easton businessmen Robert Kohlenberg and Solomon Koppelman, who own the complex, said Friday that tenants will begin moving in sometime after next week.

A total 32 of the 112 unit complex will be opened next week. The owners said that 25 per cent of all apartments are already rented while 89 other persons have made inquiries.

Construction of the apartment complex — the first garden apartments in the area — began last year.

The complex comprises 160-by-170 feet long two-story buildings with each building containing eight apartments.

Kingsmen dumped by St. Paul's

CRESCO — A 28-point performance by Bob O'Brian led St. Paul's to a 55-41 win over Pocono Central Catholic in the Catholic League's Central Division Friday night.

O'Brian scored only two points in the first period but accounted for 12 of St. Paul's 18 points in the second period.

The Kingsmen (2-8 overall and 0-1 in the league) played St. Paul's on even terms the second half but couldn't make up the early deficit.

Paul Katchmere and Craig Megargle led the losers with 13 and 12 points in that order.

Pocono Catholic salvaged a split for the night with a 41-35 win in the junior varsity action.

Celtics defeat Lakers, 88 to 82

BOSTON (UPI)—Brilliant outside shooting by guard Sam Jones helped the Boston Celtics pull out an 88-82 win from the Los Angeles Lakers Friday night.

The Celtics established a 69-58 lead by the end of the third quarter in which the Lakers scored only 15 points and hit only four of 22 field goal tries.

Boston built up a 14-point lead early in the fourth quarter but the Lakers, paced by subs Jay Carly and Mel Counts, came back and tied the game on a Counts free throw with 4:44 to go, 77-77.

From that point Jones hit four straight outside jump shots to give him 20 points for the night, his best showing since he returned from a groin pull three weeks ago, and to give the Celtics a lead to keep.

It was the lowest scoring win for Boston this year.

Bill Russell, Boston's player-coach, blocked nine shots. John Havlicek led all scorers with 24 points while Elgin Baylor paced the Lakers with 21 points.

Slatington jumped out to a 19-5 lead midway through the first period before Stroudsburg got settled. The Mounties closed the gap to 21-13 at the end of the period and took a 24-23 lead with 4:50 left in the second period on a tap by Dale Marsh.

The Mounties led 35-32 at the midway point but Bill Andreas opened the third period with three quick field goals and the Slaters were never headed. The third period ended with Slatington holding a 58-45 lead.

Jeff Kuntz led a quartet of winners in double figures with 21. Bob Hanke added 18, Darrk Lilly 14 and Andreas 11.

Jack Marvin paced the Mounties with 16 points. Bill Weber had 11 and Marsh 10.

The Stroudsburg JVs (8-3) dropped a 42-41 thriller in the opening game, Craig Potcher had 17 and Greg High 14 for the losers.

Charlie Sifford is all smiles as he leaves the 18th green with two-shot lead after 36 holes in Los Angeles Open.

Sifford maintains lead in LA Open

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charlie Sifford shot a cool par 71 Friday to go with his first round 63 and held a two-stroke lead after 36 holes of the 72-hole $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

Sifford's halfway total of 134 was eight under par and two strokes ahead of lanky George Archer of Gilroy, Calif. Archer had rounds of 69-67-136. Par for the Rancho Park municipal course is 36-35-71.</

JIM MURRAY

Golf course superintendent

If you think "pola annua" is a small South American python, or "blue fescue" is a period in Picasso's development as a painter, you have never been exposed to that forlorn community of men who have to go out and try to par a golf course with a collection of rakes, hoes, tractors, aerators, blowers, tubs of manure, hoses, sprinkler heads and tears.

The golf course superintendent's natural enemies are wind, sun, rain, ferrets, moles, skunks, crows, sea gulls, deer, salt, drought, flood, weeds, rocks, and locusts, but his really implacable foe is that all-season insect, the full-sweated red-eyed MEMBER who may be further identified by the froth around his mouth, the mud in his shoes, the piece of broken steel in his hand and the triple-figure score in his pocket.

"Call that a golf course?" he will scream. "Goats wouldn't graze on it!"

In every tournament of 200 players, there is one winner—and 199 critics of the golf course. "Unfair test of golf!" screams the guy who put it behind a tree with his built-in slice. "Who's the course superintendent around here, Dracula?" "Who cuts these greens—sheep?"

In California, there are more than 660 golf courses. In Southern California alone, the golf superintendents' chapter numbers 168. For all of them, this time of the year is their moment of truth. The big boys, the big tournaments, come through, from the Southern California Open at Los Coyotes this weekend to the L.A. Open next week, and on through the Crosby, the Andy Williams and the Bob Hope.

Golf superintendency is part agronomy, part aggravation. A member comes howling in to have a barranca, which has been there since the glaciers, filled in so his topped shot will keep rolling and won't cost him a stroke. It would cost the course owner a real stroke to fill, as the soil cost for a such a mammoth fill would run into hundreds of thousands.

At this time of the year, Santa Ana winds can dehydrate a course overnight. Sudden rains can make it playable only be canoe. On one golf course here, a neighboring oil farm tank bucked, and put 500,000 barrels of high-gravity crude onto the fairways. The oil company resodded the course. Trouble was, the soil had so much saline content that the players referred to one hole as "Lot's Wife"—A PILLAR OF SALT.

At Los Coyotes, the superintendent sprayed a green with a chemical to kill devil grass. Unfortunately, it had a foreign substance in it which killed everything. The members wanted to fire the superintendent, the superintendent sued the chemical company, the chemical company sued the outfit that sold them the preparation, and, when last seen, the buck had been passed clear down to a Chilean nitrate company.

Mrs. Suzy Frederickson, who is married to one of them, reports that you can always tell a golf superintendent's home lawn. It's the worst one on the block. She is thinking of forming a greens committee in the home.

One course superintendent, fed up with the members' complaints, which were as inaccurate as their tee shots, finally posted this notice: "As you are aware, the undersigned is only the RESIDENT course superintendent. The course is really watered, dried, forested, leafed, sanded by an absentee superintendent who is also in charge of rodent control, silicone content of traps, the birds and bees, and sometimes even remote control over putt breaks. This superintendent is reachable only in one way. So, if you will all get down on your knees and address him directly—and DON'T SHOUT, a whisper is all that is necessary—maybe he'll heed, and will have the course in good shape for the tournament this week."

Williamson fired as Wisconsin AD

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Ivan B. (Ivy) Williamson, University of Wisconsin Athletic director for the past 13 years, was fired Friday after one of the most dismal periods in Wisconsin football history.

The regents took the action and named Williamson a professor of athletics in the school of education. The appointment was effective Saturday and a three-man committee will search for a successor.

First reports were that Williamson had resigned.

Regent President Charles D. Gelatt, La Crosse, said, however, Williamson had not resigned. Gelatt said the change was made because, "Not having control of good fortunes, we thought we needed new leadership."

The UW athletic board had recommended the firing of Williamson.

The source said there were no suggestions for a replacement for Williamson.

Williamson ironically, was one of Wisconsin's most successful coaches. His teams won 41, lost 19 and tied four from 1949 to 1955. The 1952 team was the Big Ten co-champion and went to the rose bowl.

Williamson, 57, a former star player at Michigan, was an assistant at Yale from 1934 to 1940. He spent several years in the Navy during World War II and went back to Yale until 1947 when he became head coach at Lafayette.

He came to Wisconsin in 1949 to replace the late Harry Stuhldreher.

Plot needs new twist

Once again Super Bowl less than Super

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once again the Super Bowl is less than super.

The tired old plot desperately needs a new twist. If one doesn't develop down on the field Sunday, a new format is likely for the big merger year of 1970.

Since August, we've been getting a steady diet of pro football and now we're down to a game for all the money and marbles in which the chief element as suspense is whether the Baltimore Colts will go over or under the point spread of up to 18 1-2 points over the New York Jets.

This is Super? The Jets conceivably could make it super. A hot day for passer Joe Namath and place-kicker Jim Turner certainly could turn the game around and save the day for those who favor preserving the National and American Leagues as separate entities when the merger is completed.

Our guess is Baltimore Colts 35, New York Jets 20.

Baltimore too hungry to lose

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Baltimore Colts coach Don Shula said Friday his team is still "too hungry" to blow Sunday's Super Bowl game, but the New York Jets' Weeb Ewbank said Joe Namath "wasn't whistling Dixie" when he guaranteed an upset.

As the National and American Football League title teams held light brushing-up practices for the third World Championship game in the Orange Bowl the weather turned rainy. Forecasters said prospects for a return to sunshine by the 3 p.m. EST kickoff were doubtful.

Both coaches, however, said they didn't think the weather would have much effect on the outcome of the game.

The field, chewed to mush in last Sunday's Playoff Bowl game in the rain but resodded during the week, was covered with a tarpaulin before the rain began early Friday.

The NFL champion Colts remained 18-point favorites, but Shula said, "People may be putting too much emphasis on that point spread."

With Broadway Joe at quarterback, he said, "New York is capable of scoring on the bomb or coming in with the easy touchdown on you. Joe can sure throw the bomb and he has the receivers who can catch it."

But he said the Colts, whose single loss in 1967 cost them a title shot, "were a hungry football team this year, and we still are a hungry football team."

Ewbank said his team was eager for its chance at being the first to knock over the NFL in a Super Bowl. He called the Colts "an established football team, and we are green and growing. There is no question that experience means a lot."

He reiterated, however, his confidence that the Jets can win if they play well. And Ewbank was told by newsmen that Namath said in accepting a Touchdown Club award as pro player of the year Thursday night, "The Jets will win Sunday. I guarantee it."

"He guaranteed it, huh?" Ewbank said. "Well, I'm with him. Joe's an honest boy, and if he says that he must mean it. I don't think he's whistling 'Dixie.'"

Both Ewbank and Shula expected to have everybody healthy in their regular starting lineups, although Shula disclosed that defensive back Lemmie Lyles and Linebacker Don Shinnick collided near the end of Thursday's rough practice. Lyles left the practice with "a little leg problem" and Shinnick complained of a bruised thigh.

But Shula said he expected both to be ready by the game as well as defensive end Bubba Smith, who has had an injured ankle, and runback specialist Tim Brown, who pulled up in practice Thursday with a leg pain.

The Jets' only serious injury was to all-time pro pass catcher leader Don Maynard, who had a hamstring injury. But he'll be ready to go Sunday.

Officials named for Super Bowl

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle Friday announced the following officials for Sunday's Super Bowl between the Baltimore Colts and New York Jets in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Referee, Tom Bell, NFL; Umpire, Walt Parker, AFL; Head linesman, George Murphy, NFL; Line judge, Cal Lepore, AFL; Back judge, Jack Reader, AFL; Field judge, Joe Gonzales, NFL.

Also named were Fred Swearingen of the NFL and Charlie Musser of the AFL as alternates.

An easy Baltimore triumph, however, would have considerable influence on planners who are mulling over which direction they'll take from 1970 on. They'll listen hard to those who prefer to see the AFL

These four quarterbacks will share playing time as they lead their teams in the Senior Bowl Game to be played Saturday. The South squad will have (left to right) Edd Gargett, Texas A&M; Loran Carter, Auburn; while the North will have Bobby Douglas of Kansas and Greg Cook of Cincinnati. (UPI Telephoto)

North favored to wind up with 4-1 edge over South

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The strong left arm of Kansas quarterback Bobby Douglas has made the North the favorite to win today's play-for-pay Senior Bowl game and thus wind up with a 4-1 edge over the battered South for this winter's all-star tour.

After all, the hard-throwing, 6-foot-4, 217-pounder, who was second only to Notre Dame's Terry Hanratty on this past season's all-America roster, has an even stronger supporting cast than that which he led to a 21-15 victory over the South last week in the American Bowl at Tampa, Fla.

His two favorite receivers of last week, flanker Eddie Hinton of Oklahoma and all-America tight end Ted Kwalick of Penn State, are also here and the North has been bolstered this time by a pair of all-Americans from Oregon State—fullback Bill Eynard and center John Didion—plus highly respected receiver Gene Washington of Stanford.

Eynard was picked as the outstanding offensive player in the North's 13-7 Hula Bowl victory over the South and Washington, who was in the Hula Bowl along with Didion, earlier was named the outstanding offensive player in the East-West Shrine game.

"I know (North coach) Allie Sherman of the New York Giants) will accuse me of crying 'wolf,'" said South coach Charlie Winner of the St. Louis Cardinals. "But I sincerely believe that the North squad is simply too strong this year. At least half of their starters were somebody's all-America."

The Senior Bowl's 41,000-seat Ladd Memorial Stadium has been a sellout for nearly two weeks—the earliest that all tickets have been sold for the game in its 20-year history. Kickoff for the national televised (NBC) contest is 2 p.m. EST. This is the final game of the four-month long college football season.

Today's game will provide the first "payday" for the 56 college seniors. Members of the winning team will get $1,000 each and the losers will get $750 each—$150 more than was formerly paid to members of the losing team.

It appears Douglass, rated by Sherman as "the best lefthanded passer I've seen" will have to do yocman duty at quarterback for the third time in 11 days.

Although he had only two days rest after the Orange Bowl, the Kansas ace was forced to go most of the way at Tampa because the North's other quarterback, Greg Cook of Cincinnati developed a sore arm.

Cook, the nation's total offense leader this past season, was still complaining about his arm this week. He says he thinks he hurt it in the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Ala., two weeks ago. That game was the only one the South has won this winter.

The South also got some help from the Hula Bowl. Florida State's Ron Sellers, a second team all-America who set several national reception reords, is on hand as are a pair of outstanding runners—Paul Gipson of Houston and Ross Montgomery of Texas Christian.

Gipson finished third (with 1,550 yards) in rushing last season behind O.J. Simpson of Southern Cal who played for the losing South in the Hula Bowl and "Mercury" Morris of West Texas who played for the South in the American Bowl. Simpson and Morris are not in the Senior Bowl.

All four Senior Bowl quarterbacks played last week at Tampa. Winner will start with Edd Gargett of Texas A&M at the South helm and "see how he goes" before deciding what to do about Loran Carter of Auburn. Gargett had a great fourth period last week when the South rallied from a 21-point deficit only to run out of time.

Over exposure isn't hurting pro football

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Commissioner Peter Rozelle said again Friday professional football is in no serious trouble with "overexposure" on television, but that he feels "there could be a problem in the future."

A pet project of Rozelle's for a number of years has been getting the pro football teams to consider playing more Monday night games if television will agree to cover them. He suggested Monday night games as a possible answer to the "Sunday afternoon saturation" of doubleheaders.

Rozelle said that by 1970, when the merger of the National and American Football Leagues will be complete, Monday night games could eliminate the overexposure problem under new contracts to be negotiated with NBC and CBS. The commissioner said that if the two networks are not interested in more Monday night football, arrangements might be made with an independent network.

Rozelle added that Monday night games would have the advantage of winning new fans for pro football from among regular television viewers in addition to taking the load off Sunday afternoons.

In a news conference prior to Sunday's Baltimore Colts-New York Jets world championship game in the Orange Bowl, Rozelle also made these points:

—That pro football is "pretty well stuck—but happily at this point—with the name 'Super Bowl'," but he said the name of the annual game will remain formally "the NFL-AFL world Pro Football Championship Game."

—That he would like to negotiate with the Orange Bowl committee and CBS to hold one more Playoff Bowl game next year between the runnerup in the NFL Eastern and Western Conferences before revising the format of the game for 1971.

—He is "very satisfied with the arrangements right here" for future Super Bowls, but that the question of possibly rotating the game to other cities will be considered at the pro football owners' meeting in March at Palm Springs, Calif.

That also on the agenda for the winter owner meetings will be a discussion of whether to align the 26 teams under the merger into completely new divisions, or leave them as they are in order to keep up the rivalry between the NFL and AFL.

—That all is quiet presently between players and owners who are often at odds over pay and fringe benefits. "They are resting until the next round of negotiations," he said.

Jets still quoted 18-point underdog

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—On the ticket for Sunday's Super Bowl Game, it reads "The Baltimore Colts vs. the New York Jets."

But it's really Joe Namath against the whole world.

Rarely, if ever before, has one man dominated an event to the extent Namath has this professional football championship to be played in Miami's nearby Orange Bowl Sunday.

"The Jets, AFL champions for the first time in their checkered history, still are being quoted 18-point underdogs, but there is far more curiosity and interest in how Namath will do than there is in the actual outcome of the game."

Baltimore coach Don Shula, who had chided him a bit earlier in the week for downgrading Colt quarterback Earl Morrall, conceded Friday Namath has added immeasurably in focusing national attention on Sunday's game.

"Unquestionably, there seldom has been a more colorful fellow than Namath," said the Colt coach. "Certainly he's gotta help the overall interest in the game."

Shula then touched on last Sunday night's now-famous episode between Joe Namath and Lou Michaels, in which the 250-pound Baltimore place-kicker first wanted to take the 195-pound Jet quarterback part limb from limb, then wound up being his best friend after a few drinks.

"We got a big laugh out of the incident," said Shula. "Lou told me it wasn't a bar that it happened in, it was a restaurant."

"Joe is the 837th guy Lou has threatened to deck," laughed Shula. "But if Lou hadda punched him, he'd have been only the 38th guy."

The well-put-together 38-year-old Baltimore coach said a lot of people have the wrong idea about how the Colts feel about the Jets.

"I respect them," he said. "They're capable of scoring the easy touchdown. And Namath is capable of hitting with the bomb at any time. When the AFL started, I always thought they had a quarterback gap. But their quarterbacks are getting better and better, led by Namath."

For all the respect Shula said he felt for the Jets and Namath, it was pointed out to him that he had been going around smiling and apparently unworried while his Colts were in training here.

"I think you're getting into the high school stage when you go around wearing a long face and don't smile," he explained. "The game is important to us. Very important. Everything we've accomplished this year goes on the line at 3 o'clock Sunday. If we blow it, everything we did all year is destroyed."

The Colts have paid attention in their training session to all the Jets generally, but they have concentrated on stopping Namath in particular. "They know he's a threat every moment he's out there."

"We've worked on this deep drop that he has. He has this deep set, but what makes him so tough is that he'll quick set a lot, too."

Tight money points evil finger at market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks took another turn for the worse Friday after making good headway early in the session. Trading was fairly active.

Normal pre-weekend evening up pressure seemed to intensify in the final hour of trading. Investors and traders were distressed over prospects of tight money, the uncertainty over the income tax schedule scheduled to expire June 30, the snag in the Vietnam talks in Paris, and the Middle East tinder box which could blaze without warning.

The initial demand for stocks, meanwhile, was regarded as technical, a carryover condition from the Thursday surge lasting a three-day plunge.

Motors ranged to more than a point lower despite heavy production schedules this week. Copper issues showed scattered strength in response to recent price hikes in the industry. Electronics generally were under considerable pressure.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a loss of 0.20 per cent on 1,574 issues crossing the tape. Declines topped advances, 746 to 601. There were seven new highs and 19 new lows.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials dipped 1.93 to 925.53. DJ rails and utilities also declined.

The New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a loss of 14 cents in the average common share price.

Turnover amounted to 12,689,000 shares, up from the 12,100,000 shares in the previous session.

Delmarva Power & Light topped the list of 15 most active issues, dipping 3/4 to 25 1/2 on 301,000 shares, including a block of 290,800 shares.

United Fruit, second on the list, held unchanged at 85 1/2 on 290,500 shares. Zapata Norwest, which has offered to purchase United Fruit's shares, dipped 1 1/2.

American Electric Power rounded out the three most heavily traded issues. It lost 1/2 to 36 1/2 on 254,300 shares, a large block transaction accounting for a good portion of the volume.

B. F. Goodrich, active during the past two days, rose 1/4. Loew's Theatres, another active stock, said it is the largest shareholder of the rubber firm. Loew's gave up 3/4.

General Motors, the most active automobile issue, fell 1/4, while Ford and Chrysler slid 1/4 each. American Motors lost 1/4. Car makers have announced heavy production schedules for this week.

Other active stocks on the losing side were Jim Walter, down 1 1/2; Southwestern Public Service, 1/4 lower; Memorex, off 2, and Allied Chemical, down 5/8.

Du Pont, another loser among the chemicals, dropped 2 1/2, while Monsanto gave up 3/4.

In the winner's circle on the active list were Houston Light & Power, up 3/4; Public Service of Colorado, 1/4 higher; Glen Alden, up 1/4; Interco Inc., up 1/4, and Anacanda up 2 1/2. The latter reflected recent price hikes in the copper industry.

Armco topped the steel group, climbing 1 1/2. Other steels moved narrowly. Du Pont fell 2 1/2 in the chemicals, while Cities Service was a standout in the mixed oils, rising 2 1/2. Atlantic Richfield dipped 1 1/2. Gelfy 1 1/2.

Northwest Industries surrendered 2 in the rails, but KLM led the airlines, gaining 2. Grumman rose 3/4 in the aircrafts, with United down 1.

In the electronics, IBM fell 1/4. Control Data 3/4, and Scientific Data 2. Off one or better were General Electric, Littlon, Magnavox, Fairchild Camera and National Cash Register.

Xerox lost 3/4, Polaroid 3/4, Rock 3/4 and City Investing 2 1/2. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly lower in moderate turnover. Volume amounted to 5,625,110 shares compared to 5,632,180 shares on Thursday. The Amex index dipped five cents to $31.22. Of the 1,021 issues traded, 453 declined and 377 advanced.

AP goes to law to prevent news stoppage during strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press continued distributing news throughout the world Friday despite a two-day-old strike, while legal actions were begun to prevent interference with publication of its news report.

The strike was called Thursday morning by the Wire Service Guild, an affiliate of the American Newspaper Guild, AFL-CIO, representing more than 1,300 editorial, photographic, clerical and other employees.

Key issues in the dispute include wages and a Guild demand for a modified union shop. A federal mediator met separately Friday with the AP and the Guild.

One-third of AP employees within Guild jurisdiction are at work, the AP said. All 37 of its main state bureaus in the United States were functioning, along with 61 of 71 correspondencies, smaller bureaus within the states employing one to eight persons.

In three cities, legal actions were initiated against refusal of union members to handle AP copy, or to cross picket lines.

The New York Times was not handling AP stories as a result of a directive from the Newspaper Guild of New York to its members urging them to support the strike. On the New York Post, supervisors handled the AP news report.

Both newspapers, in independent actions, filed complaints with the National Labor Relations Board, which acted promptly to enjoin alleged secondary boycott activities of the union.

U.S. Dist. Judge William B. Herlands signed a show-cause order and scheduled a hearing for next Tuesday.

The New York Daily News said it expected to resolve the issue under arbitration provisions of its own contract with the Guild.

In Honolulu, both the Star-Bulletin and the Honolulu Advertiser were prevented from publishing when seven unions refused to cross a one-man picket line of the Wire Service Guild. Both papers filed a charge with the NLRB calling the walkout an illegal secondary boycott.

In Wisconsin, the Madison Capital Times said it had filed unfair labor charges against its editorial employees for their refusal to handle AP news copy and pictures. The employees are members of the American Newspaper Guild.

Taxpayers advised to prepare

PHILADELPHIA — Get a head start on the income tax filing season by starting now to assemble tax records.

Seymour I. Friedman, Director of Internal Revenue for Eastern Pennsylvania, emphasized that cancelled checks, receipts, records of contributions, and other financial records should be gathered now to help you prepare your 1968 Federal income tax return.

Complete records help to insure that taxpayers do not pay more taxes than they should and also make the job of preparing the tax return easier.

Friedman said that a copy of last year's return is one of the best guides for preparing the 1968 return.

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — If in doubt as to procedures, and advice is needed, look to sources that have proven themselves knowledgeable in the past. Re-examination and, maybe, some revisions may be needed.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Now you have an excellent opportunity to show your adaptability and ability to think and act quickly at a given time. In discussions, remain silent till you are sure of what others are thinking, then you can speak with more certainty.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Planetary influences favor those who are soundly progressive. A good period for REAL advancement. Forget past slights; your mind should be on present aspirations and objectives.

July 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — What is one person's disappointment may be another's desire, so study your associates, try to understand possible reasons for discomfiture, and give of your innate sympathy to boost morale.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Pay no attention to those who express jaundiced viewpoints or those who obviously nurse unwarranted grudges. Counteract all ill-will with your innate good humor and sense of logic.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Like Gemini and Libra now, get your healthy, progressive ideas out into the open for perusal; hold discussions with intelligent and forward-looking people. Do not be disturbed over petty annoyances.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Seek to know all you can about those with whom you deal, their feelings on all subjects, and express yourself precisely but considerably. Be wide-awake to real opportunities.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Do not go overboard in your enthusiasms now. Look well before you invest time, talents, money. But neither be so fearful that you miss advantages and pass over good buys.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Choose astutely what you will or will not attempt now, and stay with essentials all the way. If you investigate further, you may find that a discarded idea DOES have some worth.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Saturn's auspicious position places you in line for success in vigorous enterprises. A certain amount of daring favored now.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — If you do not notice "small" errors and where you missed "little" chances for gains, you will probably not see the big ones. Be alert!

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Exercise your keen mental faculties and intuition. Some indicated opportunities may be missed if you are too hasty or indecisive. Court good will at every turn, but don't let your heart rule your head.

YOU BORN TODAY are an able, willing worker and associate; are a lively, sociable entertainer, at clubs, anywhere. This can be a big help, directed astutely. Avoid gossip and pessimism. Caution is high here, also, though you can spend quickly when you see a worthwhile proposition. You are able to drive relentlessly through adversities and succeed by sheer vigor when many would drop back. Birthdate of: Alexander Hamilton, American statesman; Eve Le Gallienne, famed actress; Wm. James, philosopher.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. [—]

JEAN ADAMS

MIXED UP: (Q.) I'm a boy of 15 and I'm all mixed up. I like a certain girl. She likes my best friend. My friend doesn't like her except as a friend.

I started messing around with her. She told me plainly that her feelings were all for my best friend. She even wrote it down for me to read. This really hurt. I don't like to admit it, but I loved her.

She told me to forget her. I was working on this and was at about the halfway point of forgetting.

Then last night she called me. I just can't imagine what she had in mind. Don't you think she was forward to call me? Do you think she is beginning to like me?

Baffled Boy in Chicago

(A.) Unless she had a very urgent reason to call you, she was forward to do so if her reason was urgent, she didn't get her message through to you.

Tell her this. Talk it over with her. Listen to her. But do not fall for her again until you get all the facts. Her real reason may be that she is trying to attract interest of her friend, not you. If you find out this is so, forget her all the way.

If, however, you are convinced it's you she's really interested in, quit trying to forget her, and try to relax. From there on follow your heart and your mind. Don't forget the mind part.

RED ON RED: (Q.) I'm a curly redhead. It's sort of auburn. I have freckles and wear glasses. I'm 13 and five-foot.

Can I wear red? What other colors will look good on me?

J. M. of Maryland

(A.) Red-haired girls can look super in red. But it must be the right red. Reds with lots of orange won't flatter you. Like the right reds, the right pinks should also make you look fascinating. In each case your mirror will give you the answer.

Your good colors, in about this order, are Kelly green, all rich blues, gold, beige, white, turquoise, and black.

MIXED-UP SKIN: (Q.) The skin on my face is a combination of dry, oily, and very oily patches. My cheeks are dry. My forehead and chin are moderately oily. My nose and ears are very oily. I've tried every kind of soap from oatmeal to medicated. Still the same mixed-up skin. Is there an answer?

R.W. in Tulsa

(A.) Some lotions are compounded to cope with several skin types on one face. I am sending you the name of one. Use it every time you wash your face. If it does not help, consult a dermatologist. He can give you diet and treatment advice, and may be able to solve your problem permanently.
